He'll Speak-Out At That Time

Ike Won't Campaign Until GOP Selects Him As Candidate

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Powers Europe, April 12 — (AP) — Gen. Eisenhower said today that if he wins the Republican nomination he will shed his army uniform and "be free to speak and act as any other citizen" in quest of the Presidency.

It was a clear indication he intends to take as little part as possible in the pre-convention campaign now being waged for his nomination.

He plans to make one appearance, at a ceremony of the Eisenhower Foundation at Abilene, Kan., June 4. Aside from this, he said, he and Mrs. Eisenhower "are eagerly looking forward to a short vacation—if we may be allowed one."

Until he meets newsmen in a farewell visit possibly 48 hours before departure, "I'm not going to discuss any kind of political question," Eisenhower said. And he declared he had no information—"not the slightest"—on his successor as supreme commander.

His statement was made to about 200 reporters, radio and television representatives at SHAPE. President Truman announced yesterday the general had asked to be relieved of his command about June 1.

In the letter askng relief, the general suggested his major task here was finished.

Ike Hates Pressure

Now, Eisenhower said, he wants to be relieved of all political pressures possible while he gets on with his job at SHAPE.

"I must prevent politics from affecting this vital job during the weeks I remain in service," he said.

"I have not submitted my resignation from the American Army," he said. "I have forwarded a request that I be relieved from my current military assignment and placed on an inactive status.

"If, however, I should—through the current effort now going on at home—be nominated in July to political office, I shall promptly submit to the President by resignation as an officer of the army. From that point on, I would be free to act and speak as any other citizen, without any of the limitations imposed by the traditions of the military establishment.

"I should like to point out that ihs would mean complete separation from the Army of the United States. For example, I would not be entitled, thereafter, to wear the uniform."

Next Wednesday, Eisenhower will begin a farewell tour of his North Atlantic command with a trip to Brussels. Thereafter he will visit the Hague, April 18, Oslo April 21, Copenhagen April 22 and other capitals of the 14 member nations at dates yet to be arranged.

Brass Respects Ike

Eisenhower's separation from SHAPE has already begun to be an emotional business. About 70 generals, admirals and other high ranking officers listened tearyeyed yesterday while Eisenhower told them of his plans. The officers, representing all 14 nations, had been taking part in a paper exercise on how to repel a Russian invasion—the major purpose of SHAPE.

Brig. Gen. Anthony Drexel Bibble, Eisenhower's diplomatic advisor, described it as "one of the most dramatic and moving incidents of my experience."

Taft Invites Ike To State All His Views

WASHINGTON, April 12—(AP)—Senator Taft of Ohio issued a "cordial inviation" tonight to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to state definite views on the issues involved in the Presidential campaign.

Backers of Taft's bid for the Republican nomination have been contending that Eisenhower is carrying on a political campaign from Paris, but without committing himself on controversial issues, and is therefore asking the Republican party to "buy a pig in a poke."

Eisenhower's admirers have said they are sure he will make known his views in due time.

Taft issued a statement tonight which amounted to a polite challenge to the General to "present his position on all the issues before the American people."

News Pleases Taft

The statement follows:

"Millions of Americans must have shared my own pleasure in hearing the news that Gen. Eisenhower plans to come home on June 1, and present his candidacy in person to the voters of this country. I extend a cordial invitation to him to campaign actively, as I have been doing, so that we may both present to the Republicans our definite views on the issues before the people, on the position the Republican party should take on these issues, and on the kind of campaign that should be conducted.

"I realize the embarrassment in which his supporters have placed him while he was on active duty, but once he returns to an inactive status, I am sure no one would criticize him if he should frankly and promptly present his position on all the issues before the American people."

Eisenhower is giving up his post as European Army commander and going on inactive status by June 1. He disclosed in Paris today he plans to make a speech at Abilene, Kan., June 4.

He said that if he wins the Republican presidential nomination, at the convention opening July 7 in Chicago, he will resign from the Army altogether and "be free to act and speak as any other citizen."

Senator Butler (R-Neb), a Taft backer, issued a statement saying:

Ike Allowed Six Weeks

"It is worth noting that, although the President summarily dismissed another five-star general who was actively running a war, namely General MacArthur, he is allowing General Eisenhower six weeks to continue his political campaign from SHAPE headquarters.

"Eisenhower has had the time in recent weeks to conduct a running political conference with his advisors, like George Allen, Sid Richardson, Senator Lodge, General Lucius Clay, Paul Hoffman, Tex McCrary, Hugh Scott and others. Surely his military duties must be such that he can be spared right now instead of six weeks hence. I hope he returns at once so that he can answer the many questions I am sure every American wants to hear."

Telephone Union Calls 7 Exchange Walk-Outs In Sedalia District

Seven exchanges of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., in the Sedalia District, have become affected by the telephone strike. These exchanges according to Z. Lyle Brown, district manager, Boonville, Mexico, Moberly, Slater, Marshall, Fulton and New Franklin.

WASHINGTON, April 12—(AP)—The threat of an immediate nation-wide telephone strike vanished late today, but union officials indicated they were ready to "declare the Bell system strikebound" if labor settlements aren't reached soon in three states.

Joseph A. Beirne, president of the CIO Communication Workers Union, met all day with top union officials, then emerged with the statement:

"Some movement by the company in negotiations since the Michigan settlement has caused the CWA to defer action" on a nation-wide strike call.

The Michigan settlement this week brought an average 12.7 cent wage boost for an estimated 18,000 Bell system workers. But 33,000 Bell workers are still out in New Jersey, Ohio and northern California.

And 16,000 production and maintenance workers in plants of the Western Electric Co.—A Bell system subsidiary — are still on strike in 43 states and the District of Columbia.

Aged Dutchman Battles US Pipe-Smoking King

PURMEREND, The Netherlands, April 12—(AP)—An American pipe store proprietor and a 77-year-old Dutchman will battle next Thursday for the title of world's champion pipe puffer.

The antagonists will be separated by several thousand miles. When the smoke of battle clears, the American and present claimant of the title, Paul Spaniola, will be sitting in the front window of his shop at Flint, Mich. The Dutchman, Nico Klijzing, will fight for the title of his dreams —he hopes not pipe dreams— at a Purmerend pub.

Each man will receive 50 grains of burley tobacco and two matches and see how long he can keep his pipe going. Spaniola's present record is 88 minutes and two second, established last October in Chicago.

Tempo Builds On All Fronts In Korea War

SEOUL, Sunday, April 13—(AP)—Fighting tempo increased all along the Korean war front today.

Allied troops reoccupied three hills on the eastern front at dawn Saturday, six hours after they were forced off the positions by a Chinese Red attack.

Communist troops resumed probing assaults.

Bad weather, however, grounded Fifth Air Force planes Saturday.

The Chinese troops attacked the three hill positions along a three-mile sector west of the Mundung Valley at midnight Friday. Allied troops withdrew and pounded the positions with artillery and mortar fire. The Chinese pulled back before dawn.

Small bands of Communist shock troops whose trade mark is unusually long hair have been seen during the past month on the eastern front. A few have been shot and their bodies recovered by Allied patrols.

'Long-Hairs' Are Clean

The "long-hairs" wear freshly-cleaned clothes. Their clean and uncalloused hands indicate they have not fought and lived the rough life at the front for long. Allied officers expressed the opinion they are specialists recruited for infiltration and guerrilla missions.

The Fifth Air Force said ten Allied planes were lost over Communist territory this week, but none were in air-to-air combat. Allied fliers shot down four Red jets, scored two probables and crippled seven.

This ran the claim toll for the war to 414 Red planes destroyed, 114 probably destroyed and 520 damaged. The Air Force has lost 612 to all causes.

As the fighting picked up, truce supervision negotiators set a new record for brevity Saturday when they met for only one minute. The old mark-set Friday—was 90 seconds.

Seven Sessions Wasted

Their last seven sessions have averaged less than five minutes each.

But they go through the motions again on this Easter Sunday, traveling to the tiny tent town of Panmunjom for a session opening at 8 p. m., CST, Saturday.

Miss Palmer Endorsed For High Office

District GOP Delegates Split On Taft, Eisenhower Support

The Pettis County Republican Committee meeting, held at the courthouse Saturday, opened in spirited fashion between the Taft and Eisenhower forces, but ended in party harmony. The 14 delegates elected to the District Convention to be held here May 1 and the State Convention to be held in Kansas City June 2 were divided equally.

Carl G. Schrader, chairman, presided over the meeting.

A discussion over the naming of the delegates ended when Mayor Herb E. Studer moved the convention elect a seven-member committee to select the delegates. He was seconded by George H. Miller.

In the motion Studer named L. J. Harned, Gordon Callis, T. H. Yount, Olen Monsees, Leland Coontz, Thomas Harvey and Dick Keenan as the members of the committee. The motion was carried by a 27-24 vote.

Armistice May Come By May 1

Officials Express Hope For Agreement In Korean Conflict In Very Near Future

WASHINGTON, April 12—(AP)—Officials guiding truce negotiations in Korea said today that an armistice probably will be agreed on fairly soon, possibly by May 1.

The chief reason for this new optimism in Washington is the belief that a solution will be found for the United Nations-Communist deadlock over release of prisoners of war.

The issue has been under active study in both Allied and Communist capitals, as well as in closed sessions of truce negotiators at Panmunjon, it was reported.

It is understood that a formula has been evolved, but not yet fully agreed to, which would:

(1) Avoid forcible return to North Korea and China of prisoners held by U. N. forces.

(2) Assure release of American and Allied prisoners by the Reds and

(3) Save face all around.

Diplomats here said the U. N. would never compromise the right of prisoners of war who turned against Communism to choose not to go home again. The problem has been how to secure this right in a formula acceptable to the Reds.

Short Sessions No Worry

The brevity of recent negotiating sessions in Korea, though giving rise to some concern there, was described here as of no great significance. Ultimate decisions on basic issues have to be made in Washington and Peiping (or Moscow) and the lull in diplomatic activity in Korea was attributed to this fact.

Aside from the prisoner of war question there are two other issues. These are the Red proposal that Russia be accepted as a "neutral" nation to help police a truce, and a U. S. demand that airfield construction in Communist North Korea be banned during a truce.

These have been insoluble problems up to the present, but the Washington view is that if the prisoner issue can be settled the other two major difficulties will quickly disappear.

Until the current wave of hope set in, the best informed authorities here generally rated the chances of a truce agreement at 50-50. The idea that an agreement will "probably" be reached represents a substantial change although officials make the reservation that nobody can tell what the Reds will do until they have done it.

The new optimism is based in part on the somewhat more agreeable conduct of Red negotiators at Panmunjon, and in part of Russia's "peace" drive.

The main purpose of this drive is believed to be to block West Germany's alliance with the western powers. One of the most dramatic steps the Communists could take in this connection would be to agree—possibly in time for his Red May Day celebrations—to wind up the fighting in Korea.

From the Kremlin viewpoint it would be cheap, too, since Red forces have been defeated in their strategy of conquering all Korea and appear to have nothing to gain by going on fighting.

3 Ex-Sedalians Hurt In Two-Car Collision South Of Higginsville

Mr. and Mrs. James N. Harms and son David, four, were injured, Mrs. Harms seriously, in a collision at Highway 40 and 13 about 11 a. m. Saturday morning. Their other son Daniel Douglas, one, was not injured. The Harms family, formerly of Sedalia, now resides at Higginsville.

The other car involved in the accident was driven by Raymond R. Oetting, Kansas City.

Oetting was driving east on Highway 40 and Harms was headed south of Highway 13 when the collision occurred. The front of both cars and the right side of the 1951 Chevrolet convertible of Harms was damaged. Oetting's car was a 1949 Chevrolet.

Mr. and Mrs. Harms and David were thrown several feet from the car by the impact.

They were taken to a Higginsville clinic and given emergency treatment. Later they were transferred to the Bothwell Hospital, where Dr. E. L. Rhodes attended them.

Mrs. Harms suffered fractures of six ribs, severe shock, head injury, bruises and contusions. Her condition was reported as serious.

David suffered a fracture of the left collar bone, cuts, abrasions, contusions and bruises.

Harms suffered a sprained back and bruises.

Mrs. Harms and son are confined to the hospital, while Harms is at the home of his parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Armstrong, 725 West Seventh.

Mr. and Mrs. Harms and family were enroute to Sedalia to spend Easter with relatives.

Custodian Found Dead After St. Louis Blaze

ST. LOUIS, April 12—(AP)—Thomas Bowie, 56-year-old custodian, was found dead today in his basement apartment quarters after a fire swept through the basement.

Exact cause of death was not immediately determined. Fire damage was estimated at $1,250.

This scene, which portrays the theme of the Easter poem below, is being reinacted today in more than 40 churches of Sedalia. In the picture are Eddie, nine, and Kay, eight, children of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Arquitt, 916½ South Ohio. They are pupils at Broadway School. (Padgett photo)

An Easter Prayer

O, Lord, this is an Easter prayer
That all the world may someday share
In our belief that He who died
Upon the cross there—crucified,
Was Christ—thy son—sent to fulfill
Thy word and carry out thy will.
May His great teachings reach to all,
May every nation hear His call,
If only He reach out His hand
To touch the hearts in every land,
That differences might disappear
To banish war and hate and fear,
For lo, the Prince of Peace is He.
He stilled the waters of the sea;
He healed the sick, the lame, the blind;
He brought great faith to all mankind.
The promise of new life He gave;
He came to teach the way and save.
He loved the children gathered 'bout,
Small hearts in which there was no doubt,
And still today that is the key
To Heaven and eternity—
The simple faith of children then
And now—means that we live again.
We die that we may be reborn
The promise of that Easter morn.
O, Father, hear us as we pray,
Fulfill our joy of Easter Day.

Flood Outraces Army Engineers At St. Joseph

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)—Army Engineers halted emergency work on a dike protecting Rosencrans Air Field here today, saying it was useless to try to outrace the surging Missouri River.

Col. L. J. Lincoln, Kansas City district engineer, said the river would break into the airport through surrounding bottom land and cover the field with three feet of water by Sunday, April 20.

Packing plants probably will be forced to close, and about three feet of water will back into low parts of the stockyards, reported Col E. E. Browning, St. Joseph area engineer.

Workmen were strengthening the levee at the St. Joseph Water Company plant, and engineers said they believed that source of the city's water supply would be safe.

Rosecrans Air Field will close at 7 p. m. tomorrow and equipment will be moved out of reach of the muddy water, which is expected to cover the field several days before the crest arrives.

Across the river at Elwood, Kan. evacuation preparations were getting under way today. The 1,200 persons there will move to Wathena, Kan. There will be no school at Elwood Monday. Instead, the teachers and students will move books and equipment to high ground.

Criminologist Will Speak to Knife-Fork Club On Wednesday

Captain Jack Harrison, noted Chicago criminologist, CID officer in the China-Burma theater during World War II, president of the Leonarde-Keeler Inc., former associate with Dr. Keeler in working out the details of the famous "Lie Detector", author, showman and public speaker, will be the speaker at the next meeting of the Knife and Fork Club which will be held at the Bothwell Hotel Wednesday, April 16, at 7 p.m.

It is expected that a large crowd will be on hand to hear Captain Harrison.

Capt. Harrison is coming to the club to take the place of Dr. William H. Gordon, the announced speaker for this meeting. Dr. Gordon is ill and the international association is sending Harrison in his place.

Coast Guard To Aid Rescue Of Missouri Flood Victims

ST. LOUIS, April 12—(AP)—The Coast Guard sent 10 men and 13 assault boats by truck today to Mound City, Mo. about 40 miles north of St. Joseph, to help in flood rescue work.

Three of the men were from the St. Louis base. The others had come here from Cleveland for flood assignments.

The detail is commanded by Chief Bosun Norman A. Cooper.

Jane Froman Visits Her Injured Husband In San Juan Hospital

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, April 12—(AP)—After a four-hour wait by official order, Singer Jane Froman was reunited at a hospital today with her husband, Capt. John C. Burn, who piloted a plane that carried 52 Easter travelers to death in the shark-infested Caribbean.

The singer flew in from New York to see Burn, the central figure of a tragedy reminiscent of the 1943 crash in the Tagus river at Lisbon in which Burns saved Miss Froman's life.

"I am very happy," she said, after guards finally admitted her.

Her husband was one of 17 survivors of a crash yesterday outside San Juan harbor of a Pan American DC-4 that faltered after taking off for New York.

She had been barred by order of District Attorney Zoilo Dueno Colon, who questioned Burn about the crash.

The Coast Guard announced the search has been abandoned for the 39 missing pasesngers. Thirteen bodies were picked up near the crash scene. Most of the victims were Puerto Ricans.

GOP Senators Seek Inquiry On Steel Order's Legality

WASHINGTON, April 12—(AP)—A group of Republican senators, accusing President Truman of illegal seizure of the nation's steel mills, moved today to force a Senate investigation of the action.

The group, led by GOP floor leader Bridges of New Hampshire, drafted a resolution to hand such a study to the Senate judiciary committee. Sen. McCarran (D-Nev), long at odds with the White House, heads that committee.

Meanwhile, the government was reported to be considering the possibility of giving a "down-payment" wage boost to Philip Murray's steelworkers pending agreement on a new contract between the industry and the CIO union.

Any such wage hike, top officials said, would be to the point which the industry indicated in talks with the union prior to seizure that it would be willing to pay.

Negotiations Still In Knot

Negotiations now under government sponsorship, are deadlocked and the union is chafing under terms of a contract which expired more than three months ago.

Bridges announced that Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich) and Knowland (R-Calif) would join him in introducing the inquiry resolution when Congress returns to work next week after its Easter recess. Sen. Schoeppel (R-Kan) said in a prepared statement" I shall be happy to join" as a sponsor.

Text of the resolution proposes an investigation "with a view to determining whether there is any constitutional or statutory authority for such action."

Denouncing the seizure in a statement, Bridges declared:

"Merely stating that an emergency exists does not give any president the right to ignore Article Five of the Bill of Rights which guarantees our privacy and our rights to due process of law.

"There is every evidence that the rights of the owners of the steel mills were violated in this respect."

Truman Created Emergency

The statement said the threatened steel strike, avoided when Truman seized the plants, was an emergency "of the President's own making."

Bridges contended Truman should have invoked the Taft-Hartley Act before seizing the plants, adding that if this "failed to solve the dispute, under its provisions he could have come to Congress for additional power to meet this situation."

As for the proposed inquiry into the seizure, Bridges said:

"It is no empty question to ask, 'if the President can seize the steel mills, can he also seize the cattle on American farms to provide a steady flow of meat into the homes? Can he seize any and all private property for any purpose whatsoever?'

"The country is entitled to know the answers."

Total Grows By The Hour

Flood Crest Runs More Than 40,000 From Their Homes

OMAHA, Nebr., April 12 (AP)—Spring floods, scourging seven midwest states, tonight had driven 10,244 families—perhaps 30,000 to 40,000 persons—from their homes, and more were evacuating by the hour.

For another 7,500 families, displacement was only a matter of time, the Red Cross said.

The worst lashing was coming from the muddy Missouri, swollen beyond all precedent along nearly 1,000 of its miles from South Dakota to Kansas and Missouri.

Sioux City, Ia., and its cross-river neighbor, South Sioux City, Neb., were taking the worst of the Missouri's rampage, with still another three foot rise expected before the flood "hump" arrives Monday night.

Downstream, Omaha and its twin city, Council Bluffs, Ia., worked feverishly in a slim hope that levees could be raised enough to hold back a gigantic 30 foot crest expected next Thursday. Total evacuation of a Council Bluffs area containing nearly 5,000 persons was ordered and hundreds more on the Omaha side were getting out. Nearly 4,000 Army troops were ordered in to help fight the levee battle.

Mississippi Overflows

In Minnesota, the Mississippi surged to an all-time high at St. Paul, oustaing about 700 families and all but closing Holman Airport. Scores were engaged in a sandbag battle to stem damage from further rises in the next several days.

In North Dakota, the Red River of the north rampaged along a 150-mile course from Wahpeton to Grand Forks in what shaped up as a potential worst flood of the current century.

Fargo, with its 38,258 population, was a focal point. St. John's hospital in Fargo was surrounded by water up to five feet deep and 107 patients were evacuated with the help of National Guard "ducks."

The paralyzing blow being dealt by the Missouri, trying to disgorge its load of spring thaw runoff, was set against a backdrop of dreary spring rains mixed with snow.

At South Sioux City, Neb., the mayor urged the total evacuation of the city's 5,557 persons but decided to keep the refugee center in the high school open, moving everyone up to the second floor.

Sioux City To Be Covered

One third of South Sioux City already was covered with water averaging eight feet deep and the crest promised to leave not a dry spot in the town. Only one highway out of town remained open. The Missouri River bridge linking Sioux City and its Nebraska neighbor was cut off but special trains ferried evacuees across the bubbling, boiling river.

Suburban areas of Sioux City, Iowa's second largest metropolis with 83,991 persons, were taking more and more water. Foundations of downtown buildings showed signs of buckling. Silt-laiden water crept higher and higher into industrial and stockyards areas.

Along the Nebraska-Iowa reaches downstream, the river's width spread out to 10 miles and more, gobbling up farm after rich farm.

The Red Cross estimated 9,080 families had been displaced or faced imminent displacement in Iowa, 3,301 in Nebraska, 823 in North Dakota, 1,979 in South Dakota, 1,431 in Minnesota and 1,330 in Missouri.

More were known to be threatened in northeast Kansas.

Red Cross Set To Do Battle With Floods

WASHINGTON, April 12—(AP)—The entire organization of the American Red Cross was placed on emergency status by President E. Roland Harriman today to meet the threat of the flooding Missouri River.

"We have already sent 100 national staff workers into the flood area to assist the thousands of local Red Cross volunteers in their emergency relief efforts," Harriman said in a statement. "Every additional staff member who can be spared from his regular work is now on call for disaster duty."

Harriman said the organization is already operating 34 shelters, with dozens more in readiness. He said one of the biggest evacuation and shelter tasks will be in Council Bluffs, Iowa, where 5,000 families have already been ordered to leave their homes. All of Sioux City, Iowa, may also have to be evacuated, he added.

Mobile equipment is being rushed to the stricken and threatened areas from as far away as St. Louis and Detroit, Harriman said.

The overall relief operation is being handled at a headquarters set up in Omaha under the supervision of Max Rote, Assistant National Director of Red Cross disaster services.

1,000 Need Help In Pierre

An organization spokesman said approximately 1,000 persons are being fed, and from 300 to 400 being sheltered, in Pierre, S. D., where the flood has already passed its crest.

The spokesman gave this summary of Red Cross activities:

Local Chapters in the threatened area have been alerted, and they are making preparations with the help of national staff members to feed and shelter flood victims.

Nine shelters have been provided at Sioux City, Ia., where the crest is expected Monday. Mobile canteens and other equipment are being moved into Sioux City, Council Bluffs and other cities threatened.

The Red Cross estimates that some 15,000 families will be driven from their homes temporarily and that 8,000 of these will apply to the Red Cross for help.

FT. LEONARD WOOD, Mo., April 12—(AP)—A hastily-assembled fleet of commercial airliners this afternoon started hauling the first of nearly 4,000 troops from this post to the flood-stricken Nebraska and Iowa areas.

Officers hoped to land 600 of the men by airlift at Offut Air Force Base in Omaha by morning.

Six hundred other troops were moving out in buses tonight, and the rest of the men will leave in two trains tomorrow.

The troops are heading for the mud-slogging duty of sandbagging and patroling dikes along the rampaging Missouri River.

They will be divided about evenly between Omaha, Council Bluffs, Ia.; Hamburg, Ia.; and Nebraska City, Neb.

The contingent will be commanded by Col. John L. Person, working under Brig. Gen. Don G. Shingler, Omaha, Missouri River division engineer.

Fast mobilization marked the troops' departure. Fort Wood's commanding general, Maj. Gen. James G. Christiansen, received the alert from Fifth Army Headquarters, Chicago, at 10 a. m., and by 3 p. m. The first plane load of men left the airport at Vichy, Mo., about 30 miles northeast of here.

Men who already had left the Fort on week-end passes will be rounded up and dispatched on the trains tomorrow.

Ex-Ionia Woman Killed In Texas Car Accident

Mrs. Grace Francis James of Lefors, Tex., formerly of Ionia, was killed in a car accident Friday morning near Clinton, Okla. Her husband was seriously injured in the wreck.

Mrs. James was the youngest child of the late Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Francis. The Francis family lived at Ionia before moving to McLean, Texas in 1910.

Surviving are her husband, one daughter and two sons, a brother, Roger Francis of Plainview, Tex., and a sister Mrs. Isabell Petty of McLean, Tex. Three brothers, Ernest, George and Robert preceded her in death.

Mrs. James was a cousin of Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Nelson, 1838 South Barrett.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Nelson and daughters, and Mrs. Robert Francis, of Perryton, Tex., cousins and sisters-in-law of Mrs. James, who arrived in Sedalia Friday to spend the Easter holidays with relatives, heard about the wreck over the radio en route here.

Ike to Resign In Army Only If Nominated

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED POWERS IN EUROPE (AP)—Gen. Dwight Eisenhower said today he would resign his Army commission only if he is nominated by the Republican party for president.

Meanwhile, he said, he has made no plans for making a political campaign for the nomination after he is relieved June 1 as supreme commander in Europe.

Eisenhower told a news conference he had asked that his request for inactive status be made public so "I can devote my time to finishing the job I was sent here to do."

The general will leave April 16 for Brussels to begin a series of farewell visits to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization capitals in Europe.

"If I should be nominated I shall promptly submit to the President my resignation from the armed services," he said.

"I should then be free to speak, like any other citizen, on any subject.

Eisenhower's retirement from the NATO command—at his own request—was approved by President Truman and announced yesterday in Washington.

As a five star general however, he holds permanent rank in the Army, and upon his retirement from command he will merely revert to inactive status. He held similar inactive rank while holding his pre-NATO job as president of Columbia University.

Eisenhower told reporters that in the next several weeks—while he remains here—he will devote himself entirely to the affairs of his command.

"I am not going to discuss any kind of political questions, so I can devote my attention to this job.

"I must prevent politics from affecting this vital job.

"There are important things to do which I believe I can do," he said.

Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. (R-Mass), manager of the Eisenhower-for-president campaign, was at Eisenhower's headquarters for four days early this month, returning to the United States April 8. The two held lengthy conferences.

As to his possible successor as supreme commander, Eisenhower asserted, "I have not the slightest information on that matter."

His chief of staff, Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, and the Allied commander in Korea, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, have been prominently mentioned in speculation about the new NATO boss.

"Any one of a number of men could fill the job, possibly far better than I," the general said.

He said he has made no detailed plans for activity after his return to the United States, but that he would go to his hometown of Abilene, Kas., early in June for ceremonies opening the Eisenhower Foundation, a good-citizenship organization founded by him and his brother.

Eisenhower made a 15-minute address to some 200 newsmen in the main conference room at supreme headquarters but refused to submit to questioning.

Taft to Kentucky With All Delegates

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft's victory-flushed forces went into Kentucky's Republican convention today with almost all of the state's 20 presidential-nominating votes won.

The senator from neighboring Ohio had 15 delegate votes assured to one for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. This bettered Taft's 1948 record when he halved Kentucky's national convention delegation with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey on the first test of strength at Philadelphia.

The final four delegates—delegates at large—were to be chosen this afternoon in the state convention where Taft leaders confidently claimed 1,448 of the 1,703 delegates.

40 Years Ago the Unsinkable Titanic Sank With 802 Lives

NEW YORK, (AP) — It was 40 years ago that the unsinkable Titanic sank.

No peacetime deep sea ship disaster, before or since, took more lives. None ever broke more hearts.

The Titanic went down with 1,513 men, women and children. Only 711 were saved. It was epic drama and it began, like all great drama, quietly, confidently, without a shadow.

On Sunday, April 14, 1912, the new 45,000-ton queen of the Atlantic run was steaming westward on her maiden voyage from Southampton to New York. She moved under clear, starlit skies, in a serenity of superlatives. The Titanic everybody said, was the newest, biggest, most luxurious, safest liner afloat.

Late in the afternoon, the air became cold and damp, the decks were deserted. But it was warm and comfortable below. Passengers wrote letters or read in the beautifully appointed library. Some played cards. Others chatted in the salons.

Most Had Retired

In the evening, an Anglican clergyman led a large group in a hymn-sing in the D-deck salon. At 10 o'clock, stewards served biscuits and coffee. By 11, most of the passengers had retired.

On the bridge, watch officers saw only black, calm seas. The Titanic sped on at her full 21 knots.

About 15 minutes before midnight, at a point some 450 miles south of Cape Race, Newfoundland the crow's nest lookout sounded the alarm bell. The first officer also had sighted the peak of a huge iceberg. He shouted to the quartermaster to starboard the helm.

The huge ship responded but her forward motion was so great she slid obliquely against the iceberg. There was a gentle lifting motion.

Many passengers paid no heed. Some card players saw the iceberg's 100-foot peak sweep past their portholes, stopped their game only long enough to debate its height.

Ripped Off Steel Plates

Below, the Titanic was dying. The submerged bulk of the ice mountain had ripped open the double hull of steel plates and the cold seas rushed in.

The wireless crackled out distress signals. At least seven ships heard the pleas but only the cruise ship, Carpathia, 48 miles away, was to be of any help. (Later she gathered the survivors and carried them to New York.)

The Titanic's giant engines stopped, started, stopped again. A murmur of apprehension spread among the passengers as they gathered on deck. But it was only a whisper now.

Told to put on life preservers, the passengers did and watched calmly as the crew prepared the 16 lifeboats.

Rockets Signal Distress

Still no panic. The ship remained on even keel, her great wounds invisible below deck. A pipe high up on one of the ship's four stacks emitted a deafening roar as the engineers released the steam in the giant boilers. Rockets were fired from the bow. This, then, was real distress and now the passengers knew it.

The order went out: Women and children first into the lifeboats — and the lifeboats only had room for one-third of the people aboard.

Some women elected to stay with their husbands. Many had no choice. Fame and fortune had no vote. Those remaining behind included John Jacob Astor, Benjamin Guggenheim, Archibald W. Butt, Isidor Strauss.

The bow of the Titanic began to dip. But the first lifeboats were only partly filled with women and children as they swayed down toward the dark sea. Later lifeboats were filled to over-crowding.

All Sing Hymn

On the slowly sinking deck, the ship's orchestra played and people aboard and in the lifeboats sang "Nearer My God To Thee."

At 2:20 a. m., Monday, April 15, about two and a half hours after the collision, the Titanic's lights went out. Almost as a goodbye signa., they flashed on again for a moment. The stern rose, machinery was torn loose and everything moveable rushed in a great roar toward the disappearing bow.

The sea closed over the stern of the Titanic and the last, unrecorded words of its victims. The water became calm again and the night quiet, except for the low moans from the lifeboats under the clear, star-lit sky.

Easter Parade Almost Myth As Cars Cut Walking Distance

Time was when Sedalia really had an Easter Parade. Mother and Dad and all the children paraded their spring finery all along the several blocks, walking from home to church on Easter Sunday morning.

Those days are nearly gone, and probably forever.

Dad's at the wheel of the auto, Mother's by his side and youngsters take over the back seat. Of course, there's fewer children than back in the old parade days, for today's families are not so large.

No matter the distance, a couple of blocks or clear across town, the family rolls to church on the rubber tired conveyance, parks as close to the front door as possible and hurries in for the service.

Even in the old days the buggy provided parade viewers with a look-see at the new attire being sported by the family. The cars even hide that — except, of course, for the hats—and there's so little to some of them that they, too, are obscured from view as Mother and Sister ride merrily along.

Except for a short stretch on Osage and a spot or two along Broadway, the Easter Parades this year will be short — by present standards they could more properly be called dashes. So, the occasions to show off the new spring outfits are confined to the church buildings.

Of course, those in the choirs, save where the choirs are robed, have the advantage over non-singers in letting others get a glimpse of what they're wearing.

Attend Director's Meet of Farm Bureau

Present at the recent meeting of the Pettis County Farm Bureau board of directors meeting, at which important matters were discussed, were: C. S. Arnold; President Olen Monsees, state director of the fourth district; William P. McCune, Mrs. G. S. Thompson, Mrs. Glen Short, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Nicholson, Mrs. Bruce Claycomb, Mrs. Cloyd Leftwich, Miss Mamie McCormick, Mrs. Clay Schroeder, Mrs. E. H. Gregory, W. C. Corlew, W. J. Ficken, Fred Hoos, Thomas J. Raines, James A. Harvey, C. A. Staples, Jerry Conaway, Robert Wellver, Mrs. Kenneth Anderson, Charles Romig, Merle Vaughan, James Perry, Mae Everett and H. L. Pack.

Early arrivals might claim a few more oh's and ah's, too.

But, with it all, few of our miladys will get by unnoticed and most will furnish the topic of conversation for those who were able to spot their costumes.

When tending goal for a hockey team, the Chicago Black Hawks, Sam Lopresti made 83 stops in a single game.

Bridegroom Has Many Troubles, But Says 'I Do'

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—It was close but Bridegroom Jabez Martin Richens Jr., of Oklahoma City finally was married yesterday to Miss Marie Fowler of Tulsa.

The 32-year-old Richens first forgot to pay his bill at a service station. Police arrested him and brought him to jail. The jittery Richens finally persuaded officers minutes before the scheduled wedding at a local church that he would return after the ceremonies.

Arriving eight minutes late at the church, the bridegroom remembered his wedding license was in his hotel room. An usher dashed out to get it.

Mr. and Mrs. Richens Jr., returned together to the police station after the wedding. The new husband promised to send a check covering the unpaid bill — as soon as he could find his check book.

Hawk Flies Through Double Glass Window

MIAMI, Okla. (AP)—Farmer Henry Estus thought it was a tornado or another earthquake when a double window in his kitchen suddenly was shattered yesterday.

Bits of flying glass sprayed his breakfast oatmeal.

When he looked up there was a sparrow hawk dying on the broken glass. The hawk had crashed through both the storm sash and the inside window pane.

Only $13,874 Raised Locally For Red Cross

To dat the Pettis County chapter of the Red Cross has collected only $13,874.02 for the Red Cross fund campaign. This leaves over $5,000 to be collected.

It is well to remember that April is always regarded as "disaster month", and it is a matter of record that more tornadoes and other natural tragedies happen at this time than at any other period.

The Red Cross is asking for more money than was originally requested to take care of the relief and rehabilitation in the seven state area visited by the tornadoes several weeks ago, and to rebuild the disaster fund of the American National Red Cross which was completely exhausted in flood operations last summer.

Sanctuary will have to be given to the homeless of the subsequent storms. Everyone is asked to give again, and give generously. You may mail your donation, or call the Red Cross office, phone 618, and a worker will call for it.

The next visit of the mobile blood unit is scheduled for May 9 and 10 and all Red Cross blood donors are urged to make their registration.

In the same connection a 16 mm. film, "There Is No Substitute," will be available at the Red Cross office from April 30 through May 8, and would be a most interesting part of any civic program. The Armed Forces require every month 300,000 pints of blood which often means the difference between life and death for the wounded.

Call the office and make arrangements for a showing of the film.

By Ruth Maurine Hoffman

Smith-Cotton speech students received first ratings in two events and second in another at the annual district speech tournament held at Central Missouri State College in Warrensburg, Saturday. Stanley Walch received first in extemporaneous speaking. Donald Barnes placed first in original oration and second in interpretative prose reading.

Stanley and Donald are now eligible to compete in the state speech tournament which will be held at Missouri University, Columbia, April 25 and 26.

There are six events in the state speech contest. Since Smith-Cotton's debate team also won first place in the district debate, it will have representation in three of the six events.

James Cable was Smith-Cotton's interpretative poetry reading contestant in the district tournament.

In addition to Smith-Cotton delegates, speech students from high schools at Clinton, Eldon, Versailles, Slater, Jefferson City, Boonville, Marshall, Lexington, Warrensburg and Raytown also took part in the district contest.

Miss Ann Sawford, speech coach, accompanied the boys to Warrensburg.

Kefauver Says He Can Whip Any GOP; Will Back Nominee

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP) — Sen. Kefauver says he can whip any Republican presidential nominee, but "if by chance" he doesn't get the Democratic nomination he will fully support whoever does.

Speaking here and in Boise, Idaho, the Tennessee Democratic presidential hopeful made it clear, also, that he favors government development of power resources in the Pacific Northwest, a subject of considerable interest in this region.

In Boise, Kefauver said he feels he can defeat any GOP candidate "because the people generally approve our foreign and domestic policies."

In Pocatello, he commented that his support would go to "whoever the Chicago convention selects "if, by chance, I don't win the nomination."

Poland Uses Half Its Navy to Ship Arms, Food to Reds

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Polish refugee sources here said today Poland is using half of her merchant navy — some 100,000 men — for secret shipments of armaments, machinery and food to Communist China.

The sources said between 15 and 20 big Polish ships are operating regularly from Polish Baltic seaports to Tientsin, China, the Poles go a long way around to avoid detection of this shipping, the sources said, making no stops at bunker ports enroute and refuelling from a big Polish tanker in the Persian Gulf.

War materials being moved include Soviet guns and tanks, other light equipment from Poland and Hungary, the source said, adding there were indications that Hungarian and Czechoslovak Jet engines also were in the cargoes. The smaller equipment was said to be packed in huge barrels marked "sugar."

Some Bellhops Boyle Has Met

By HAL BOYLE

CINCINNATI (AP) — When you register at a hotel, the desk clerk bangs a bell importantly and calls out?

"Boy! Show this gentleman to his room."

The next few seconds are always full of tremendous suspense. Getting a hotel room is one of the great dramas of everyday American life. Each person must play his role exactly right or the whole thing is ruined.

The desk clerk has acted his part perfectly. He looked at you with icy suspicion when you first stepped meekly up to him, like a prisoner at the bar of justice.

Then a slow smile spread over his stern countenance like a frozen river breaking up in spring. Yes, Sir! Prefer a tub or shower? As you sign your name a small sensation of self-respect creeps back into you.

"Boy! Show this gentleman to his room!"

Who will step forward? Whoever he is, he will make or break the whole performance.

There are some bellhops who pick up your bags, stare at them disdainfully and make you feel like a dime store thief as you trail them through the lobby to the elevator.

Others can do it with pomp and ceremony, as if they were Cleopatra's servants unrolling the welcome rug for the great Ceasar. Other guests look up impressed, and you secretly hope they think you are a mighty elephant hunter just in from Africa.

Some day a perfect hotel will be built. One of the first things they will do is hire midgets to strew rose petals in your path. I have always thought that would make an impressive entrance.

There are all sorts of bellhops. Veteran travelers will recall at least some of these types:

1. The elderly retainer bellhop — he is white-haired and time-bent and has been with the hotel ever since it put in its first Gideon Bible. He usually picks up your briefcase in dignified silence, and you carry the heavy bags yourself, grateful to be of any assistance you can.

2. The palsy-walsy bellhop — he starts whispering in your ear in the elevator, gives you the low-down on the town, and waits until you open your bag in the room to see if it contains an open bottle he can share.

3. The chamber - of - commerce bellhop — "We've a great little city here, sir," he says, and begins unreeling statistics on bank clearings, employment figures and the prospect of new industries. This boy lets you know he expects to own the hotel himself soon.

4. The busy bee bellhop — he flutters about the room opening windows that ought to be closed and closing windows that ought to be left open. When he finally says, "will that be all, sir?" You feel as if the very least you can do is offer to send him through college.

5. The Hamlet bellhop — he never utters a word, just puts down your bag and looks at you like a melancholy hound dog. On his face is an expression that asks silently, "how could life do this to me?" You have a wild sense of fear that tears will begin to roll down his cheeks.

6. The dodo bellhop — this is the old-fashioned bellhop who takes you briskly and cheerfully to your room, puts down your bag, hands you your key, and says "thank you" if you give him an old-fashioned two-bit tip.

Most bellhop collectors I know insist this type is now extinct in America, and has been for years. They say that if you offer a bellhop only a quarter today he will look at it and ask in honest surprise, "what is it?"

LAST YEAR'S HAT, MY DEAR?—Katy and Betty Weaver, twins, are only 11-months-old, but the young Miami girls display all the hauteur of two Park Avenue debutantes as they eye each other's Easter bonnets. Give them a couple of bouncing baby boys from down the street, and a four-passenger baby carriage, and they'll be all ready for the Easter parade.

Fireman Saves Woman

FORT ERIE, Ont. (AP)—Harold Lang, walking to work last night, saw smoke pouring from a house.

He went in, wakened and saved Mrs. Ann McConnel and her daughter, called the fire engines, and walked on down to his job—as a fireman in Buffalo, N. Y.

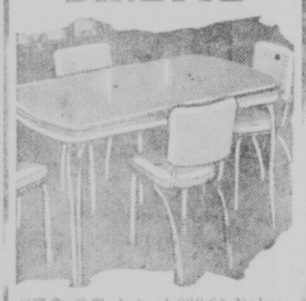

Joan Fontaine Cannot Take Daughter Away

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Television producer William Dozier has obtained a temporary restraining order to prevent his former wife, actress Joan Fontaine, from taking their 3-year-old daughter out of the country.

Dozier said in his petition yesterday that Miss Fontaine is planning to take the child, Deborah Leslie, to England and Spain on a movie-making trip. He said he fears war and shortages and that further, he would be deprived of his visitation rights.

Hubbard School Style Show Has Large Attendance

The annual style show given at Hubbard High School Friday night April 11, was a great success. The show was witnessed by a large audience. Parents and friends came from Knob Noster, Montserrat, Concordia, Marshall, Warrensburg, Tipton, and other near by towns.

The little tots, modeling "Bright Young Frocks" received much applause, not only for their garments but for their superb modeling. Girls in the eighth and ninth grades modeled various styles of cotton aprons. The plaid denim play clothes, as well as the plain blue denim sets, were very cute.

One of the most beautiful scenes of the evening was one in which the girls modeled skirts, blouses, and ensembles. Models wearing dresses, suit dresses, suits and toppers looked as if they were walking from the stage to join the Easter Parade.

Musical numbers were rendered between scenes by the Hubbardaires, featuring Beatrice Mason, Marshall, and Sadie Winstead, Tipton.

Miss Doris Nicholson, home economics instructor, was in charge of the entire program. Mrs. Doris Moore, accompanist. Ushers were Charlotte Smith, Loretta Rainey, Louise Willis, Alice Irving, Maxine Gay, Julia McMiller and Nellie Miller. According to information received Saturday by the Boots-Olson Motor Co., local Ferguson dealer, the federal judge ordered:

This notice will continue to be affixed until Oct. 25, 1966.

Missouri Legion Loses 40 Acres To Georgians

JEFFERSON CITY, April 12—(AP)—Missouri Legionnaires have lost another membership drive to Georgia. This time it is going to cost them 40 acres of Missouri land, according to John Hatton, State Adjutant of the American Legion.

Last year Georgia won a mule from the Missourians on a similar bet. This year the Southerners gave Missouri Legionnaires a chance to get their mule back.

Hatton said today the Missouri Legion was able to sign up only 75 per cent of its 1951 membership and Georgia came up with 84 per cent.

He said a deed to the 40 acres —as yet unpurchased—would be given to the Georgia Legion at the State Convention in Macon, Ga., in July.

Earsley Being Held In Cole County's Jail

M. R. Earsley, who reported to Sedalia police last Thursday he was robbed of $41 at Broadway and Ohio, is being detained in the Cole County jail at Jefferson City for investigation regarding a check. Lt. Paul E. Corl of the State Patrol reported a hold order has been given them on Earsley from officials of Morgan County, should he be released at Jefferson City.

Thursday morning, after Earsley made his report to Sedalia police, he met Bob Hendricks and invited him for a ride to Jefferson City on the pretense he, Earsley, had business there. Henricks understood they would return later in the afternoon, so decided being a nice day for a ride, to accept the invitation.

At Jefferson City Hendricks, unaware that Earsley was wanted, sat in the automobile waiting for him. When Earsley appeared, police picked up both of them and questioned them. Hendricks was released after friends in Jefferson City identified him to the police and assured them he was a respectable citizen. He returned to Sedalia by bus and told the local officers about his experience. Hendricks has never been in prison or jail and had no idea he was going on an auto trip with a man who had been in trouble.

The fingerprint record of Earsley, reported by the State Highway Patrol, shows he had been arrested several times, served time in the New Mexico penitentiary and the Missouri prison at Jefferson City, being released from the latter place on March 8, 1952 after serving time on a forgery charge.

Most Grains Advance, But New Wheat Falters

CHICAGO, April 12—Most grain prices rose while new crop wheat sank to new seasonal lows on the Board of Trade today.

The selling in new crop wheat stemmed mainly from last Thursday's Agriculture Department crop report, forecasting a bumper winter wheat yield of 946,845,000 bushels. That would compare with only 645,469,000 bushels harvested last year, a poor crop year.

Other cereals were not influenced by the action of new crop wheat.

Wheat closed ¾ cent lower to ⅞ cent higher, corn ¼ to ¾ cent higher, oats ⅜ to ⅝ cent higher, rye 1¾ to 2 cents higher and soybeans ¼ to ¾ cent higher.

The May wheat contract—representing the old crop—moved upward.

For the week wheat ended ⅞ cent lower to 1⅝ cent higher, corn 2¾ to 2⅞ cent higher, oats ⅛ to ¾ cent higher, rye 3½ to 5 cents higher, and soybeans ¾ to 2 cents higher.

Truman Has Been Firemen For 7 Years

WASHINGTON (AP)—It's no wonder if President Truman looked tired when he addressed the nation on TV this week. The steel dispute is just one more crisis in his seven White House years.

His critics may argue that many of his crises could have been avoided if he had anticipated them and acted sooner, although criticism always has the benefit of hindsight.

But the fact remains that since 1945, at home and abroad, he's been a man with a hose, running around trying to put out three-alarm fires, even within his own official family.

He acted in the steel dispute, seizing the mills, just a few days after Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson quit. This was followed by his firing of Atty. Gen. J. Howard McGrath, who had found it necessary to sack Newbold Morris.

Before that the President had to move in, over McGrath's head, and bounce an assistant attorney general, T. Lamar Caudle, in the midst of the scandals that were popping all over Washington.

And before Caudle there was the most sensational firing of all—Gen. Douglas MacArthur—which had been preceded by the dismissal of Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson.

In an official family crisis between Henry Wallace, secretary of commerce, and James F. Byrnes, secretary of state, Truman sacked Wallace.

There have been few peaceful weeks or even days for Truman. When he went on a Florida vacation last winter the smell of corruption in his administration drove him back to Washington.

And his most recent Florida trip was ruined by the steel dispute. The problem of government corruption—plastering mud on the RFC, the Justice Department, the Internal Revenue Bureau and the whole administration—has been a lingering and widening sore for him.

He had to buck the uproar, now subsided a bit, about Communists in government, knowing the continued congressional attacks in that direction were bound to weaken the faith of a lot of people in their government and him.

In Congress he has been frustrated right and left, especially in domestic affairs where his administration certainly set no records for carrying out the party platform.

And while he's won his major points in foreign affairs it was not without a struggle.

There was the decision to arm Greece and Turkey, which put the U. S. in a new relation to the rest of the world and meant abandoning the ancient isolation of the Monroe Doctrine.

Then came the Marshall Plan, a gigantic gamble to stop communism without guns, and when he found this wasn't enough he had to take the gigantic gamble of using guns—without firing them, if possible.

That was in creation of the Atlantic Pact and arming Europe. But the Korean War, and his decision to take America into it, was the most drastic crisis of all and he's still being lashed for the way he's carried it out.

Now that he's 68 the accumulated crises of these seven years must be a little trying, even for his sturdy body, which is why he must have written in his diary: "What a life." Maybe because he wanted to prolong it a bit he decided not to look for another four years in the same place.

WHEN DO WE EAT?—Lloyd Stoner, restaurant operator, and Isabel Cecil, right, waitress, point to the 1939 prices posted at Stoner's restaurant in Davenport, Iowa. With coffee at four cents, pie for a dime, (remember?), and complete meals for fifty cents, Stoner expects to make money. The proprietor of the economical eatery says he has another restaurant that has been doing well on the bargain prices for the last six months.

Miss Fay Lucille Johnson Becomes Bride Of Sgt. First Class John W. Helsley On Palm Sunday

At the altar of the Fifth Street Methodist Church the marriage of Miss Fay Lucille Johnson of Kansas City, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Whittier Johnson, 1408 South Osage, and Sergeant First Class John W. Helsley, son of M/Sgt. and Mrs. Oscar Helsley of Humboldt, Kan., was solemnized at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon on Palm Sunday, April 6.

Before a setting of palms, white gladioli, greenery and burning white tapers the Rev. Lee Soxman, pastor of the church, read the double ring ceremony while Mrs. Mae Moser, at the organ, played, "Liebestraume."

Preceding the service Mrs. Charles Maggard sang: "My Wonderful One," "Never," "Always" and, "O Promise Me" with Mrs. Moser as the accompanist. Mrs. Moser played "Ave Maria," "Because" and "I Love You Truly" using the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin as the processional and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" as the recessional.

As the candles were lighted by Mrs. Wanda Russell and Miss Wilma Webber, both of Kansas City, Mrs. Moser played "Let the Rest of the World Go By." Mrs. Russell and Miss Webber wore identical formals and their corsages were of pink gladioli.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. The gown she chose for her wedding was of white slipper satin designed with gathered skirt and fitted bodice which buttoned to the waist with satin buttons. The yoke of the gown was edged with a wide lace ruffle. Her fingertip veil was attached to a crown of orange blossoms and her necklace was three strands of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. She carried a bouquet of white gladioli.

Miss Ruth Johnson, of Kansas City, was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a yellow floor-length gown and carried a bouquet of yellow gladioli centered with roses and tied with satin ribbon.

Bridesmaids in colorful formals were Miss Maxine Griffith of Kansas City, Mrs. Leon Welbern and Mrs. Alice Tyler, both of Sedalia. They carried bouquets of gladioli in shades matching their gowns.

The flower girl, Diane Tyler of Sedalia, was in a floor length dress of orchid organdy and her corsage was of pink gladioli. She carried a basket of rose petals which she scattered down the aisle in front of the bride.

Linda Tyler of Sedalia ring-bearer carried the rings on a white satin pillow. Her floor length dress was of yellow organdy and her corsage was of pink gladioli.

Donald Helsley served his brother as best man and groomsmen were Shelby Kahrs, C. J. Harris and Robert Gillaspie.

Ushers were Frank Donath and Donald Donath, cousins of the bride.

Mrs. Johnson selected for the wedding of her daughter a navy blue dress with blue accessories and her corsage was of pink gladioli. The bridegroom's mother was attired in a blue dress combined with red with which she wore matching accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations.

A reception was held in the basement of the church immediately following the ceremony. The table was centered with a four tiered wedding cake on which was a miniature bride and bridegroom.

Miss Nomah Dean Snow and Mrs. Donald Donath both of Sedalia served the guests and Miss Josephine Brueck of Kansas City had charge of the guest book.

The bride is a graduate of the Smith-Cotton High School in the class of 1947. She attended Central Missouri State College at Warrensburg and has been employed as a stenographer in the discount department of the Commerce Trust Company in Kansas City.

The bridegroom was graduated from the Humboldt High School in Humboldt, Kan., with the class of 1946. He has served in the United States Army since that time and was in Korea 52 months. He will be stationed at Fort Ord, Calif., after April 13.

The couple left for a short wedding trip to Phoenix, Ariz., after which they will be at home at Fort Ord, Calif. For traveling the bride wore a gray suit with black accessories and her corsage was a white orchid.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Bohling, Dr. and Mrs. G. D. Shull, Donnie B., Walter B. and Georgie B. Shull, all of Jefferson City; Mr. and Mrs. J. G. The new dusters are very eye-catching and a must in your wardrobe. Also available are skirts, shorts, shirts, halters, pedal pushers and caps. Maybe you don't need another hat box; so make a "mending box" out of the box your Easter bonnet arrived in.

Make pockets on the inside of the box out of scraps of bright material to hold thread scissors, etc. Tack the pockets to the sides of the box with heavy thread.

Pad the inside of the lid with cotton on quilted material to use as a pin cushion for needles and pins.

Now you are ready to cover the outside of the box with wallpaper or a glazed chintz. Put that bunch of flowers from your old formal right on the top of the lid. Keep your colorful mending box by a favorite chair ready to do a little mending "while you're resting."

Happy Easter

Only a Hope Of Escaping Keeps 'Em Gay

OPICINA, Trieste Free Territory (AP)—Want a good balalaika band, with a couple of high-kicking kozatsky dancers thrown in free?

They're here in the Alpine hills above Trieste, just waiting for a job, along with 8,000 to 10,000 other refugees from Eastern Europe who chose freedom and now must sit for weary months wondering what they can do with liberty.

Under Italian laws applying here the refugees can be employed only as domestics. If they escape again —on into Italy—the situation is the same.

Their only hope is emigration, a slow process fraught with barriers.

The flow of escapees from Eastern Europe into this free zone is steadily rising. Two hundred got through in 1949, 3,500 in 1950; 5,001 in 1951—and the rate so far this year indicates that this figure will be exceeded.

They are sent on as fast as immigration permits are granted—mostly to Canada, Australia and South American countries.

The last 450 Volksdeutch—mostly from Yugoslavia—are expected to be sent to Western Germany within the next month or two.

The camps long ago were emptied of Jews. They were sent on to Israel.

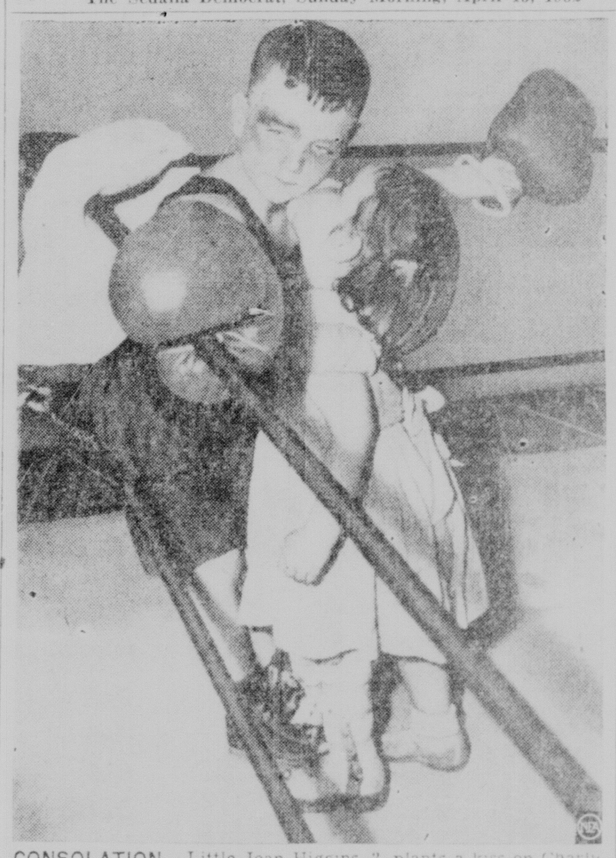

The old, the ill and the maimed mostly are left. No country has seemed eager to take them in, though Maj. Wendell L. Garrison of Joplin, Mo., camp director, says that among their number are many with ability and skills.

Here in these Trieste camps many are getting the first taste of democracy they ever knew.

They have free elections—each national group for its own leaders. But even within this framework of freedom, the age-old divisions remain strong. The White Russians and the later-day Russians do not vote nor live together, but form two separate groups. So do the Bulgarians of the bitterly rival peoples and Agrarian parties.

Not all want to go on to new homes. Maj. Garrison says hundreds of the refugees—White Russians, Bulgarians and Yugoslavs—want to wait.

They hope to go back to their old homes, he says, if and when war or revolution should overthrow the present regime and restore the old order they once knew.

British May Soon Promise Troops For NATO Army

LONDON (AP)—Diplomatic sources reported today Britain soon may give iron-clad legal assurance British troops will fight if any member of the proposed 6-nation European Army is attacked.

In effect, this would extend present pledges of automatic military aid to West Germany.

(The New York Times said today in a dispatch from Paris by C. L. Sulzberger the British cabinet is expected to announce the pledge next week).

The guarantee would not alter the practical military picture in Western Europe. Five divisions of British occupation troops are stationed in West Germany and an attack there certainly would involve these forces.

But the promise is expected to have important psychological effects in the parliaments of the six nations, some of which have had grave doubts about the treaty now being drafted to link the six nations in the European Defense Community (EDC).

France and The Netherlands have been particularly wary because Britain had refused to become a member of the EDC's one-uniform army.

The Dutch have expressed the view an attack on West Germany would force the EDC to fight without—legally, at least — requiring British troops to join in.

Britain already is committed to aid five members of the EDC—Italy, France, The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg—if they are attacked. That guarantee is contained in the North Atlantic Pact and, except for Italy, also was agreed to in the 1948 Brussels treaty.

West Germany, however, is not a signer of either and the 6-nation army was conceived as a method of linking German troops and arms potential to Western defense.

Youths Motorcycle to India

NEW DELHI (AP)—A pair of German youths who left home with $11 and a pre-war motor-motorcycle between them have traveled 9,000 miles to write a college thesis on India.

The pair, Gustav Pfirmann and Oskar Kroher, both 24, left home last March 15 against the advice of their friends and Munich University associates.

On the long overland trip, Kroher, a good cook with a flair for medicine, kept both men in good shape. Pfirmann, a motor mechanic, kept their ancient motorcycle purring contentedly.

GI Outfit Prefabs Foxhole Bunkers For Frontliners

WITH U.S. THIRD DIVISION, Korea (AP)—Even in the Korean mud, home is what you make it.

And the U.S. Seventh Infantry Regiment has come up with something new in battle line housing—a prefabricated bunker.

Bunkers are reinforced holes in the ground which give the foot soldiers a maximum of cover—in other words a roof over their heads.

The Seventh's assembly line is just behind the front. Two platoons cut the lumber to specifications set by the forward soldiers.

The bunker kits are delivered complete. The assembly line even sends along a representative to explain how it's put together.

All the infantrymen have to do is have a proper size hole dug.

The frontline soldiers usually cut their own machinegun slots to fit their particular field of fire. Other openings are made beforehand.

Maj. Walter M. Turner of Sanford, Fla., First Battalion commander, thought of the prefab bunkers. The job was turned over to Lt. Henry D. Hoyle of West Kingston, R.I., and Sgt. John M. Healy of West Springfield, Mass.

The only problem facing the regiment now is how it will salvage the deluxe bunkers in the event of a move to another sector.

At present the assembly line is not worried about this. Every effort is being made to supply each position with the finest in battlefront housing.

Cut Down on Germ War Charges, Tell Of Mass Tortures

TOKYO (AP)—The North Korean Red radio tonight slackened its barrage of germ warfare charges and came up with a tale of mass tortures inflicted on prisoners of war by Americans and South Koreans.

The Pyongyang radio, in a broadcast heard here, charged that Communist prisoners were beaten, tortured and killed. The Red radio quoted one Kim Chin Sop, Korean private first class, as its authority.

It quoted Kim as saying, "every prisoner is subjected to vicious tortures until he divuleges military information."

Moreover, the Red radio quoted Kim. "The Americans also use prisoners for atom bomb, poison gas and germ warfare experiments."

And in addition to all that, the Red broadcast said Kim divulged all Red prisoners who have announced they don't want to return to North Korea were forced to say so by torture.

Soviet Can Get Reckless If Not Driver

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet leadership has been credited with far-sighted planning. But in a situation it didn't plan and can't control it gets reckless to the point of disaster.

This seems to be the long-range policy: Everywhere let the local Communist party, directed and helped by Moscow, try to wreck from within, thus saving Russia the expense of a shooting war.

But the Communists made an historic miscalculation in helping Hitler come to power. And their later non-aggression pact with him and their recent proposal to let a united Germany re-arm were acts of desperation.

In the early 1930's the Communists in Germany considered the Social Democrats a worse danger than Hitler. They helped him take control, thinking he wouldn't last long and then they'd move in.

Konrad Heiden in his book "Der Fuehrer," shows this was the Moscow plan by quoting from a note by Stalin: "It is more davantageous for us that the Faseists (in Germany) should strike first; that will rally the whole working class to the Communists."

Hitler crossed them up. He not only stayed and rallied the Germans to him but practically wiped out the Communists. In 1939 he was itchy for war but found himself sandwiched between Russia in the East and the Democracies in the West, both of whom he wanted to attack but not both at once.

If he moved against one, the other might jump him from the rear. Stalin rescued him from this dilemma by signing a non-aggression pact with him, a desperate Soviet effort to escape destruction.

While the pact did give the Russians time to re-arm a bit, it almost proved fatal for them. Having demolished the West, except for Britain, Hitler was then free to break the pact and take on Russia.

After the war Moscow saw some unprotected plums on the trees—the countries of Eastern Europe—which it was able to snatch with the help of local Communists and Moscow pressure.

But the main prize was Western Europe. Moscow braintrusted the expected collapse.

The U. S. upset the strategy with the Marshall Plan, the Atlantic Pact, and the rearming of Western Europe. This produced a situation which the Soviet leadership apparently didn't anticipate at all.

They had taken control of Eastern Germany after the war, thus splitting the country in two.

The Kremlin men must have thought the West would never let the Germans have guns again. And, so long as Germany remained divided and unarmed, Russia could feel fairly safe. In the meantime it could exploit the Eastern Germans.

But the rearming Allies, tired of Russian obstruction, first let the Western Germans have their own government and then took the next step: They invited West Germany to provide troops for the Atlantic Pact army.

This was quite different from letting Germany rearm, for the troops it produced would not be part of a German army but part of the Western European army.

It was obvious to the Russians that if they could keep the Germans out of the Western army they could well near wreck it. So they tried. They suggested Germany be allowed to unite and rearm. This was bait for all Germans to split them from the West.

A united Germany, given permission to rearm, would be unpredictable and probably uncontrollable. In the end the rearmed Germany might turn on Russia again. So the Russian proposal becomes an act of desperation to wreck the Western plans which Moscow hadn't anticipated. This is Russian gambling, not planning.

Air Force May Ground 1,000 Officers Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force probably will ground more than 1,000 flying officers this fiscal year, but only a handful for refusal to fly—the reason for a small-scale mutiny of six airmen at San Antonio.

Most will be taken from flying status, Air Force spokesmen said, for medical reasons—lack of flight proficiency or, particularly among older men, lack of physical fitness.

They said 734 officers were removed from flying status during the first half of the fiscal year. Only a small percentage of the total—expected to top 1,000 by year's end on June 30—would be removed because of refusals to fly or requests to be grounded, they emphasized.

The six lieutenants at Randolph Air Force Base, San Antonio, who refused to fly included a pilot who said it made his wife "a nervous wreck," two bombardiers, two navigators and a radar operator.

The six have been on a no-flying strike since April 1. Officers at Randolph, the nation's biggest Air Force center, declined to say why, reporting only that the cases were under investigation.

Maj. Gen. J. K. Lacey, commanding the Crew Training Air Force, said disciplinary action would be taken against any man who disobeyed orders.

At Scott Air Force Base, Ill., Lt. Gen. Robert W. Harper, chief of the U.S. Air Training Command, said about 40 officers throughout the country—including six at Randolph—asked to be suspended from flying duty. He said later that 33 officers who had sought suspension were ordered back to combat training.

Harper said most had been turned down because "they were not trying to avoid flying but rather to escape combat flying." Most were reservists stationed at Randolph, he said, and less than 10 per cent were pilots.

The general explained the Air Force permits grounding of men who show fear of flying. A Scott public information officer said the six at Randolph had given this as the reason for their request.

First Lt. James G. Bristol, 35, of Harland, Iowa, is the only one of the six who has been charged with disobeying orders. The other five have not been named.

Bristol, who flew in World War II and the Berlin airlift but did not see combat, faces a possible general court martial for refusing to pilot a B-29 crew training mission. He said he sometimes returned from a flight to find his wife "prostrate and sick from waiting for me . . . so I couldn't fly under those conditions."

During World War II, airmen were governed by stiff Army regulations concerning malingering, insubordination or failure to carry out duties while under fire. The problem appears to be somewhat more serious now because:

1. Many fliers recalled to duty had their fill of air mission in World War II and, with families and civilian jobs awaiting them, no longer have a yen to fly.

2. The nature of the restricted, hedged-in fighting in Korea is unlikely to induce the enthusiasm and high morale of an all-out, clear-cut war.

Conrad G. Schmidt, aviation electrician's mate, second class, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Schmidt, Tipton.

Members of Carrier Air Group Five, currently serving aboard the aircraft carrier USS Essex, recently arrived in Hawaii on their way home to San Diego after nine months in Korean waters on their latest tour of action in the Far East.

After the outbreak of the Korean War, Carrier Air Group Five was based aboard the aircraft carrier USS Valley Forge, and was the first Navy air group to fly against the North Koreans. They were also the first air group to initiate the Navy Panther jet in combat.

In Dec. 1950, Carrier Air Group Five returned to San Diego, and was re-formed for departure aboard the Essex to begin its second Korean cruise. The Essex had just been given a $40,000,000 modernization and was ready to leave for Korea after being recommissioned in Jan. 1951.

Gregory Helps Set Blood Donor Record

Everybody's in the same boat, and nobody should drag an oar. Navy Utility Squadron 3 in San Diego, Calif., pulled their own weight recently when they made a record-breaking blood donation with the help of such men as Herbert Gregory Jr., aviation machinist's mate, first class, USN, son of Mrs. Perrita Gregory, Green Ridge, and husband of the former Miss Eva Mae Johnson of Dallas, Tex.

Based at Ream Field in San Diego, the squadron has possibly set a new national record in the opinion of the Red Cross, after the squadron donated 775 pints of blood in eight hours. This broke the station's previous record of 540 pints in seven hours, which was made in Nov.

The director of blood recruitment for the San Diego Red Cross called the recent donation "one of the most successful ever performed in this area."

Aviation Cadet Plan Being Stepped Up

The aviation cadet program of the United States Air Force has been stepped up to a point where 1,200 qualified applicants a month are being required for training, according to T/Sgt. Russell B. Rountree, USAF, Army-Air Force recruiter in Sedalia.

Applicants are required to have two years college credit, be 19 years old and not more than 26½ years, unmarried, and physically qualified. A qualification aviation cadet examination is no longer required.

Classes will begin May 1 for six-week courses.

IN THE AIR FORCE—A/3c Charles D. Curd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Curd, of Georgetown, enlisted in the Air Force on Dec. 27, was sent to Lackland, AFB, Jan. 5, for induction and training and is now stationed at Keesler AFB, near Biloxi, Miss., where he is studying control tower operations.

'Hank' Williams Continues His 'History'

Mel Jackson Pitched Branson To '39 State Semi-Pro Title

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of articles on the history of the Missouri Semi-Pro Baseball Tournament written by "Hank" Williams of Sedalia, the state semi-pro commissioner.)

The 1939 Missouri Semi-Pro Tourney was held in two cities. Sedalia was the site for all games except the title contest, between Branson and Lawson, which was played at Branson.

A protest filed by Branson Manager Eiserman led to the shift in the final game's site. Eiserman claimed two Lawson players were playing under assumed names. He requested action from Ray Dumont, the NBC president, who in turn turned the matter over to George Sisler, the national commissioner.

Sisler ruled the two players ineligible for further play.

After a two-week delay State Commissioner Lucy ruled the championship game would be played in Branson.

Ruling Brings Two Protests

This ruling immediately brought cries of disapproval from Lawson manager T. D. Williamson and the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce. Williamson claimed his team not only lost two players but had to travel 300 miles for the game by the unfair decision. In Sedalia the chamber protested the movement of the tournament after it had been scheduled and advertised in this area.

Williamson threatened an injunction to attach the receipts of the final game and prize trophies if the game was not played in Sedalia. He reconsidered the next day, however, and agreed to play in Branson to display the sportsmanship of his team.

The two contestants went into the final game with identical 5-1 records. Branson's only loss was administered by the Sedalia Knoop Sluggers, who with the Sedalia Merchants, were the two local entries.

In the title game the Lawson club got off to a flying start by scoring one run in the first inning, but from then on could do little with the steady hurling of the Branson ace Melvin Jackson.

Jackson Tight In Clutch

Jackson's mates gave him two runs in the fourth, duplicated the feat in the sixth, and the stingy moundsman coasted home. Lawson touched him for two counters in the eighth, but these were balanced by single-run innings for the winners in the seventh and eighth.

After the smoke had cleared, Branson had the championship by a 6-3 margin and Jackson had notched an easy five-hit victory. He greatly aided his cause by fanning 12 Lawson batters.

In the final standings the Sedalia Knoops finished third, and the Sedalia Merchants in fourth place.

Two major league scouts witnessed the tournament. Charles Stis of the Browns signed Marvin Blaine, Sedalia Merchant pitcher, and James Davis, Branson outfielder, to Brownie contracts, while Tom Greenwade of the Yankees, signed-up Al Schrick, southpaw fireballer, who hurled for the Sedalia Merchants.

Merchants Dominate All-Stars

The following players were selected on the all-star squad. (It is interesting to note the Sedalia Merchants placed five men, while Branson got three and Lawson none.)

P—Melvin Jackson, Branson.
P—Marvin Blaine, Sedalia Merchants.
P—James Davis, Branson.
P—Ernie Carpenter, Sedalia Knoops.
C—Morris Woolard, Springfield.

Top Wrestlers Turn To Olympic Try-Outs

AMES, Ia., April 12 (AP) — The country's most talented amateur wrestlers turn their attention this week to the final Olympic tryouts and a place on the United States team invading Helsinki this summer.

More than 150 well-conditioned gents—winners and runnersup in 16 district Olympic qualifying tests—meet at Iowa State College here Thursday, Friday and Saturday in a four mat spectacle starting at 2 p. m. (CST) each day.

Everybody here is qualified—and muscled. The U. S. team will be "the most powerful we've ever had," says the barrel - chested Raymond Swartz, Navy coach who will lead the American wrestlers against the world.

Plan Sports Programs For K. C. Riverside

KANSAS CITY (Special) — Riverside Stadium Inc., the quarter-million dollar newest outdoor sports arena in the middlewest, located on U.S Highway 71, half mile west of North Kansas City, is being readied for a season of major activity.

According to General Manager Sam Jarrett, pretentious plans have been made for sports programs to satisfy the tastes of the most discriminating.

Variety of Sports

"We're going to offer the greatest variety of sports attractions ever presented the people in this sector of the country," Jarrett said.

And by way of giving an inkling of the stadium's plans, Jarrett announced that definite arrangements have been completed for midget and stock car racing; a championship big car race on May 16; a two-night thrill show featuring Joie Chitwood and Jimmy Lynch's daredevils in mid-May, and a giant rodeo and wild west show for a full week in July.

In addition, the completely renovated stadium will stage weekly wrestling programs later in the summer season and probably will offer club boxing on a bi-monthly basis.

Midget Races on Sunday

Midget racers of the Kansas City Midget Auto Racing Association which has raced in the area for several years have been booked for appearances every Sunday night at Riverside Stadium, Jarrett said.

"If the weather is favorable," the general manager added, "we intend to inaugurate the 1952 season with a motor car racing program on Sunday, April 20, or the following Sunday, April 27. Only the weather will constitute a barrier to the opening date.

Two 68s Give Lead To Oliver At Greensboro

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP) — Pudgy Ed (Porky) Oliver, playing out of Lemont, Ill., turned in his second straight three-under par 68 today to take the lead with 136 after 36 holes of the $10,000 greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament.

But the big excitement of the day was furnished by long, learn Dave Douglas of Newark, Del., who stroked a smoking putter on the backside for a course record 35-29—64 to move into second place tie at 137, one stroke off the top end, with Doug Ford, Harrison, N. Y. Dave had seven threes and a pair of fours.

Douglas, 34-year-old Philadelphia native, rammed home 20-footers on 11 and 12, a 30-footer on 13 and a 15-footer for an eagle three on 14. His 64 knocked a stroke off the record for the 6,630-yard Starmount Forest Country Club course mark set three years ago by Clayton Heafner and Jerry Barber.

In fourth place tied at 138 were South Africa's Bobby Locke, 68 today; and Dick Mayer, St. Petersburg, Fla., with a 71.

Five more players were knotted at 139, only three back of Oliver. The group included, Art Wall Jr., Honesdale, Pa.; Jim Ferrier, San Francisco; Bob Toski, Northampton, Mass.; Ted Kroll, New Hartford, N. Y., and Jimmy Clark, Laguna Beach, Calif. Kroll and Ford, with 67s, trailed Douglas for the day's low honors.

Close up at 140 were Riegel, who fell to 73 today, and Francis (Bo) Wininger, Atlantic City, N. J., making his first start as a professional after a successful amateur career.

Association Opens Season On Wednesday

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The American Association, proudly mindful that its champions have won the last three Little World Series, pops the cap on its 51st consecutive season Wednesday.

The cast of competitors will be the same eight clubs that formed the league a half-century ago and have been fighting for the flag every year since except for two seasons about 35 years ago when Toledo's franchise was held by Cleveland.

St. Paul at Kansas City

Here's the way they will line up in the season openers:

Minneapolis at Milwaukee (2:30 p.m., CST), St. Paul at Kansas City (2 p.m., CST), Louisville at Toledo (8:15 p.m., EST), and Indianapolis at Columbus (8 p.m., EST).

Milwaukee is the defending champion and Columbus will be out to win its fifth straight opening day attendance trophy.

League President Bruce Dudley said today prospects once again are extremely encouraging that the Association will provide an "intensely interesting campaign."

Actually, any bright dreams of Dudley and the club owners would have to involve a return to normal at the turnstiles. Attendance has been slipping at Association parks in recent years.

They are banking on a reputed balance of power among the rivals to result in a ding-dong flag battle and put some pep in the ticket business.

Limited Telecasting

The television problem will be handled along the same lines as last season. Limited telecasting will be done in two parks, the same as in 1951. Indianapolis, which permitted no TV last season, will let the cameras in for the first game of Sunday doubleheaders this season. In keeping with last season's policy, Columbus will permit telecasts of 25 to 30 games.

A shakeup in the managerial ranks will result in five new skippers when "play ball" is called Wednesday. They are Gene DeSautels at Indianapolis, Clay Bryant at St. Paul, Frank (Chick) Genovlese at Minneapolis, John Keane at Columbus and Rollie Hemsley at Toledo.

Milwaukee will seek to repeat as champion with Charlie Grimm, Mike (Pinky) Higgins will be back at Louisville, and George Selkirk will direct Kansas City's entry again.

'Rocky' Returns To The Big Time This Wednesday

CHICAGO (AP) — A healthy, hooting Rocky Graziano bounds from boxing's outer fringe Wednesday night in an effort to smash from Champion Sugar Ray Robinson the middleweight crown he briefly held four years ago.

The two today were pronounced in top physical shape for their 15-round title battle at the Chicago Stadium before a surprising near capacity 18,000 crowd paying a gross of around $270,000.

That Graziano passed with flying stethescope the medical examination by the Illinois State Athletic Commission greatly relieved the sponsoring International Boxing Club.

At various times since his knockout by Tony Zale in 1948 when he lost the middleweight title in the last of three riotous scraps with Zale, Graziano was suspected of being just a shell of his "rock-a-bye baby" self. Since then, he has been beating ringdom's bush leagues, so to speak.

But that hasn't dulled the lure of a Graziano match with Robinson, often rated the best fighter, pound for pound, in the game's history.

The attraction is giving the IBC its biggest indoor game. The IBC had not been formed when the biggest indoor boxing gate in history, $422,600, was paid in 1947 when Graziano stopped Zale in six rounds to win the middleweight crown at the stadium.

Before the Illinois commission today, Graziano and Robinson tried on their six-ounce mitts for the scrap and heard Chairman Joe Triner explain the rules for their title fight.

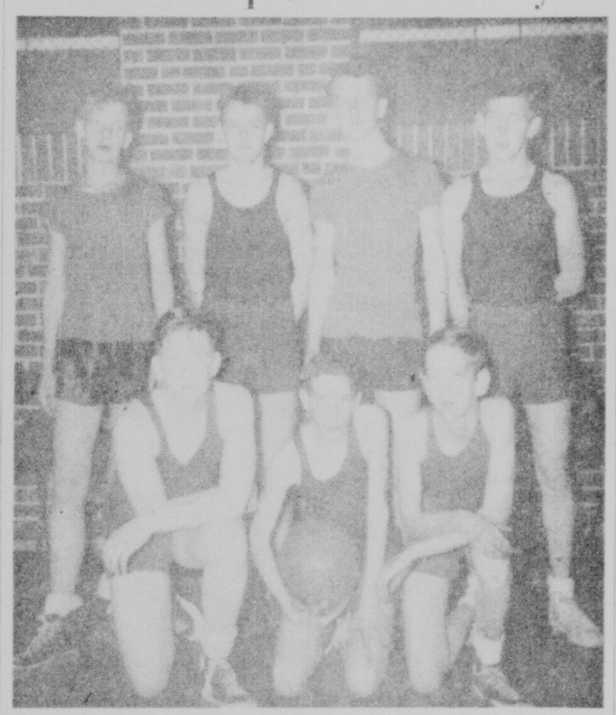

Triner said the automatic eight-count rule on a knockdown would not prevail.

Optometrist Examines Association Umpires

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 12 (AP)—American Association umpires may be "old robbers" this season, but they will be able to prove they are not "Blind Toms."

As part of a general clinic to be held for Associaton umps here tomorrow, each of the 11 arbiters will be given an eye examination by a veteran Louisville optometrist.

Second In Optimist Tourney

Sports Scraps

By D. KELLY SCRUTON

WEATHER conditions presist in keeping Sedalia's baseball from getting started as early as team managers would desire. Already a practice session for the Smith-Cotton Tigers with the Jefferson City Jays was rained out, they hope to meet Columbia Thursday, providing Old Man Sun peeps through long enough to dry out Liberty Park.

The Sedalia Chiefs likewise is having trouble getting started with practice. Two dates have been such the team couldn't get together. They had hopes of a warm up today, but rains appear to be on the stage and another day will pass. Practice dates are Sunday, Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

The only organization which hasn't started any practice is that of the Junior Legion and they meet today to sign up and get all set for early workouts. But a good number of the Junior Legion players are playing with the S-C Tigers and practice obtained there has been beneficial.

As yet nobody has come up with a plan for a Sedalia semi-pro ball club. Some of the "old timers" have talked about it but as yet nothing has been done. There are a number of B. J. graduates who would make some good material for such a team, along with several of the "not too old" semi-pro players of the area.

MISSOURI Negro Interscholastic Athletic Association at a recent meeting heard three points stressed regarding their organization. This was the advice of Dr. Sherman D. Scruggs, president of Lincoln University in telling the organization not to be too hasty before considering disbanding.

First, the MNIAA should be unified and should stress greater power in fulfilling the articles of the organization Constitution. Second, continue to build a greater association regardless of the impending factors which might decapitate the organization. Third, to consider all factors pro and con before taking any hasty steps in disbanding.

I might add such experiences the Hubbard High School went through with the Association over their football game last season, might be something for the officials to give some consideration to. Stick with their rules and get someone who knows the game, rules and can act as Commissioner regardless of his own personal feelings.

At the meeting from Hubbard were Coach Carl Tuggle and Ralph E. Lee.

CASTING is a real art. Missouri anglers in many localities have started teaching youngsters the art, many preparing their young admirers for competition in a tournament to beheld at the Wildlife pavilian at the Missouri State Fair this coming fair week.

Bill Gamble, in charge of the exhibits of the Conservation Commission at the fair, has announced contest rules and regulations have been drawn up, and that prizes to be awarded winners of the contests will be selected soon.

Conservation Agent Jack Frost, Warrensburg, will be in charge of the contests, and will be on hand to give instructions in casting to those who are not entered in the tournament. The exhibition, demonstrations and instructions in casting will be held at the casting basin behind the Wildlife bulding.

The Commission announces a new handbook "In Your Hands" written and illustrated by Jim Keefe and Bill Gamble dealing with basic forces underlying the need for conservation of natural resources, particularly in soil and water.

This booklet can be obtained for the writing to the Commission—and free.

Clyde Paces West Victory Over The East

KANSAS CITY, (AP) — All-America Clyde Lovellette poured in 31 points in leading the West All-Stars to a 72-63 victory over the East in the Shriners first benefit basketball game for crippled children's hospitals tonight.

A paid crowd of slightly more than 9,200 watched the All-Stars stage their first game for the Schriners. The West, coached by Phog Allen of Kansas, maintained the advantage practically all of the game. Mostly because of Lovellette's mastery under the offensive basket.

Lovellette, who shot Kansas into the NCAA championship and collegiate Olympic title, brought his career total for 81 games to 2,010 points, a 24.8 average.

The East held a slim halftime lead, 31-30, and the West had to turn on all its steam late in the third quarter to knock off the East, coached by Henry Iba of Oklahoma A & M.

After Lovellette and Bill Stauffer of Missouri, who monopolized the rebounds, shot the West eight points ahead 54-46, the East put on a desperate rally to come within three points, 59-62, before running out of fire.

Don Johnson of Oklahoma A & M and little Ray Steiner of St. Louis University sparked the East's drive.

Don Meineke of Dayton University threw in 13 points for the East squad.

The West lost two of its star players, Glenn Smith of Utah and Jerry Romney of Brigham Young, on an AAU ruling. National AAU headquarters advised Coach Allen that the boys should not be used in the game because they had competed against professionals in benefit games in Utah last week.

Little League To Sign Boys By Wednesday

All aspirants for positions on Little League teams will be able to register no later than Wednesday of this week officials of the loop announced Friday night. Registration blanks will be passed out by grade school principals and must be signed by both the player and his parents.

At Friday's officials meeting, final plans for the formation of the Little League were put in order. The following managers were appointed for the four-team league—Rotary, Cecil Dump; Kiwanis, George Ray; Elks, Paul Mines; and Jaycees, Geo. Thompson.

The group's executive board selected "Hank" Williams and Palmer Nickols to serve jointly as league commissioners.

Dr. Glen Lindley, the organization's president, announced that Sedalia now has its official certificate of franchise from Little League headquarters and is entitled to participate in 1952 tournament play.

According to present plans, league play will begin the night of June 2. Two contests will be held each evening, and each team must take part in at least 18 games to be eligible for tournament play.

Sportsman Finds Fishing Paradise In Chilean Lakes

NEW YORK, April 12 (AP)—How would you like to catch a 14-pound rainbow trout?

Harold McCracken, noted hunter, fisherman and author, has just returned from South America and says the world's best trout fishing is to be found in the Chilean Lake regions near the Pacific Coast.

He says 14-pound rainbows and browns are commonplace, 16-pounders not rare and 20-pounders reported.

The day before McCracken left the area on his return to the United States he and two companions fished from the same rowboat and in less than three hours hooked 17 trout totalling slightly more than 90 pounds. Six of the beauties weighed more than six and a half pounds each.

McCracken says the lakes originally were stocked in 1905 by finge lings brought from Germany. Then the area was forgotten. In 1928 an Englishman, who planned to build stocked some of the lakes with fish imported from New Jersey.

Two shipments of young fish were taken to Lake Maule on muleback by the Englishman. During the next winer he died and the area again was more-or-less forgotten. fishwise.

McCracken says the fishing paradise, which now again is becoming known, extends for 400 miles through the center of Chile, paralleling the high Andes.

Blue Man Wins Jamaica Special

NEW YORK (AP)— The White Oak Stable's Blue Man, one of the east's big hopes for the Kentucky Derby three weeks hence, came from far back with a brilliant rush today to gain a going-away victory in the $28,000 Experimental Free Handicap No 2 at Jamaica. His time was the fastest since the race was started in 1946.

It was the first 1952 appearance of the strapping bay son of Blue Swords-Poppy Cock, his first start since winning a division of the $50,000 Flamingo at Hialeah March 1, and the chilled throng of 44,910 got just what it was looking for. The customers had backed him down to even money favoritism.

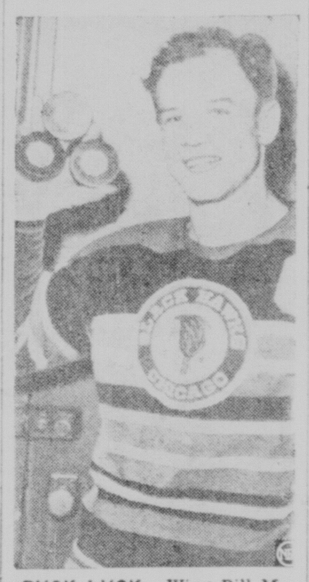

Little pint-sized Conn McCreary, who has captured two derbies—his last aboard Count Turf a year ago—, let Blue Man loose on the final turn after trailing as far back as 11th in the field of 12 three-year-olds.

Blue Man swished past Max Gluck's All's Fair near the three-sixteenths pole as they straightened into the stretch run and barged to the wire a length and three-quarters winner.

The Myhelyn stable's Master Fiddle, another late comer, gained second money, three lengths before sky ship, the Brookmeade stable colt which won the Florida Derby at Gulfstream Park.

George Washington, who owned 49 race horses, had a penchant for betting on gray-colored horses.

The Tom Thumb, one of the first locomotives in the United States, once lost a race to a horse.

PUCK LUCK—Wing Bill Mosienko of the Chicago Black Hawks holds up three pucks, signifying new record he set by scoring three goals in 21 seconds against New York Rangers. Previous mark of one minute, four seconds was set in 1938 by Carl Liscombe of Detroit Red Wings.

The Old Stars Fade Away

Army, Age, Injuries Leave Door Wide-Open To Rookies

BRIEF VICTORY—Ann Claire, of Miami Beach, Fla., voted "Miss Brevity" of 1952, models her "coronation" costume as she displays her victory trophy.

NEW YORK (AP) — Injuries, Army draft and retirement leave the door wide open for a bumper crop of post-war rookies as the major leagues open the baseball season Tuesday.

Joe DiMaggio has retired. Don Newcombe is in the Army. Ted Williams is marine-bound. Monte Irvin is out until at least July with a broken ankle.

Old age and the draft and broken bones slashed the big name contingent to a handful like Stan Musial, Jackie Robinson and Ralph Kiner.

Shiny new names like Ed Mathews, Vinegar Bend Mizell, Andy Carey, Steve Ridzik, Jim Rivera, Hector Rodriguez, Pete Whisenant, Ben Wade and Willard Schmidt soon will crowd the box scores.

There have been tremendous upheavals. The St. Louis Browns are a new ball club. The Boston Braves have a new infield. Pittsburgh has gone rookie happy. Lou Boudreau has a bunch of whiz kids fighting for the veterans' jobs. The World Champion New York Yankees, scorning a stand pat plan, injected youth all down the line.

Races Should Be Close

Topping the hysterics of 1951 will take a lot of doing. Only a triple dead heat can do it. But these hustling kids and the big turnover in players and managers promises to make this a red hot season. Both the Yanks and Giants will be hard pressed to repeat.

A last-minute trade to get power hitting Bob Elliott from Boston revived the dropping Giants after Irvin's injury. Although he is 35 and may fade in August, Elliott should be a big help to the Giants until Irvin returns. Leo Durocher still has his solid front line pitching of Sal Maglie, Larry Jansen and Jim Hearn.

With Eddie Stanky gone to manage the St. Louis Cards, every New York-St. Louis and St. Louis-Brooklyn series should be a dilly. The aggressive Stanky has done his best to instill some of that old "gas house" spirit into the Redbirds. Kid pitchers like Mizell and Schmidt to back up the punch of Musial, Enos Slaughter and Wally Westlake figure to improve the club.

Curt Simmons' return from the Army to active pitching within a month should be a shot in the arm to the Phillies, the real darkhorse of the National. With Simmons to take his turn with Robin Roberts, Howie Fox, Russ Meyer, Bubba Church and Rookie Ridzik, they'll be tough.

Roe Gets Some Help

Brooklyn expects Clem Labine to take up the slack left by Newcombe's departure. Rookies Wade and Johnny Rutherford and the "arrival" of Chris Van Cuyk may give Preacher Roe and Ralph Branca all the support they need.

There will be no special opening with President Truman tossing out the first pitch, will start with the rest Tuesday. The St. Louis Cards will open at night against Pittsburgh.

Here's the opening day schedule:

American League
New York at Philadelphia.
Boston at Washington.
Cleveland at Chicago.
St. Louis at Detroit.

National League
Philadelphia at New York.
Brooklyn at Boston.
Pittsburgh at St. Louis (Night)
Chicago at Cincinnati.

With a break from the weatherman, the opening day crowd should top the 250,000 mark.

Frick Sees No Decline In Baseball

By FORD FRICK
(Baseball Commissioner)
(Written Expressly for the Associated Press)

NEW YORK (AP)—It is difficult to look too far ahead in times like these. You never can tell when lightning might strike. However, I believe the general outlook for organized baseball is about the same as it was a year ago. We seem to have reached a norm in attendance that should not vary too much.

We have lost star players to the service and we will lose more. About 1,800 baseball players now are in service. By the end of the season we probably will have lost 3,600 players.

I do not see any serious manpower problem at this time. I think most of the leagues that start the season will finish.

Most encouraging to me is the continued rapid growth in baseball than ever before. The little leagues, the little bigger leagues and the American Legion junior baseball program provide a continuity of program.

I will watch with great interest the Pacific Coast League in its first year under the new "open" classification. This is a step toward a third major league. I understand about 90 per cent of their players have signed waivers that will keep them out of the baseball draft next winter. The Coast League has asked for the opportunity to keep its players and build toward a major league status. This is the first step.

On my tour of the training camps in Florida and California, I found everybody optimistic about the new season. It probably would be asking too much to have another ending like last year. That happens once in a lifetime. We do seem to be headed toward another good season with prospects of close races in both major leagues.

Missouri Splits Pair With TCU

FT. WORTH (AP)—Missouri and Texas Christian divided a practice baseball doubleheader today, TCU winning the opener, 5-0, and Missouri the second, 7-6.

Nobby Graves blanked the Tigers on two hits in the opener, besting Dick Atkinson and Berg Beckman.

Don Boenker tossed a three-hitter at the Frogs in the nightcap but seven Missouri errors almost ruined his effort, five of the TCU runs being of the unearned variety.

Both games were seven innings after yesterday's scheduled game was rained out.

Soviet Squad Possesses Size, Determination

Russians Loom As Toughest US Cage Foe

NEW YORK, April 12—(AP)—The chairman of the U. S. Olympic basketball committee warned today Russia probably will present the biggest obstacle to another American cage triumph in the summer games at Helsinki.

"We know Russia will come nearest matching our boys for size," said coach Howard Hobson of Yale University. "The Russians voted against putting a limit on height in Olympic games. Besides, the team looked very good in winning the European championship."

The Russians defeated Czechoslovakia in Paris for the European title. Eighteen teams competed.

Hobson said the United States should retain its Olympic basketball crown but the tournament will not be a runaway. "A number of teams have really come to the front in this sport," he added.

Egypt A Fine Entry

After viewing the Mediterranean Tournament, won by Egypt, and assembling reports from basketball experts throughout the continent, the Yale coach sizes up the Olympic tournament this way:

1. USA—"Height, speed and savvy still the best in the world."
2. Russia—"May match USA in size. Will be grimly determined."
3. Argentina—"Beat one of our best AAU clubs in South American tournament (Denver Chevrolets) and was runnerup to U. S. in Pan-American games."
4. Czechoslovakia—"Exceptionally well-coached. Has good size."
5. France—"Runnerup to U. S. in last Olympics. Is playing more basketball than any other European country."
6. Egypt—"Looked plenty good winning the Mediterranean tournament."
7. Spain—"One of the best fast-break and ball-control teams in Europe. Also good defensively.
8. Italy—"Coached in American style. Coming fast."
9. Turkey—"Tournament darkhorse."

"When I say these teams have tall boys I don't mean they have any Bob Kurlands (7-0) or Clyde Lovellettes (6-9) but they have a good quota of six-foot-sizes—and Russia may come out with some bigger, Hobson said.

Europe Teams Well-Drilled

"You must remember, too, that these European teams aren't assembled on the spur of the moment as is ours. Most of these teams have been organized and have been practicing at least a year."

The Yale coach said one of the best individual players in Europe is Spain's Fred Borras. "He's only six feet but he's a whiz of a shot and a floor man. He could make any college team in the U. S."

The Americans also will be handicapped by Olympic rules, which vary from the standards in practice in this country.

One of the main rule differences is a 12-foot free throw lane rather than six feet, meaning a larger restricted area for the three-second rule. "This will hurt our tall pivot men." Hobson said. "They won't be able to operate as freely under the basket."

They Leave On Four Fouls

Other Olympic rules specify a jump ball must be made at the point of contention, not at the nearest circle; coaches can't talk to their players during time-outs; and four personal fouls bring expulsion instead of five as practiced in the U. S. Also, the baskets and balls are different.

"The baskets are painted black and will be hard to see," Hobson said. "The ball will be the same weight and size as ours but will be something like a soccer ball and not perfectly round."

The tournament games will be played on indoor courts at Helsinki. The floors will be wood and the gym specifications will follow those in the U. S.

Levi Softball Team To Practice Monday

Familiar Figure Picks Pebbles In Sportsman Park Shortfield

ST. LOUIS, April 12—(AP)—Once again that familiar angular figure, snatching at imaginary pebbles between pitches, is roaming the infield at Sportsmans Park.

"Mr. Shortstop" is trying a comeback.

At 34, Marty Marion is two years older than he was when he last played in 1950, but the thin man is optimistic.

Last year at this time he had launched his career as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, who were considered possible pennant contenders. Today he is fighting for a job as part-time shortstop for the St. Louis Browns.

Fifteen years of organized baseball have left their scars, but Marty insists he will play in 100 games or more this season. And he predicts a better year than he enjoyed as a player in 1950 when he was plagued with a painful knee.

"The knee is sound now and I'm feeling fine," Marion proclaims. "My back bothers me a bit and it always has and always will. However, it's better now than for four years. Sometimes I have a little trouble bending."

Marion was impressive in spring training with the Browns after his year's layoff. Trying to recapture his flawless fielding form gave him the most trouble.

At bat he poked them a little harder—harder than he ever has in spring training, he says. He hit .282 in 52 times at the plate and that included five doubles and a home run.

"I think a player usually hits better later in his career," says Marion.

Marty, who has played in four World Series and who won the National League's most valuable player award in 1944, lost his job as Redbird manager after the one season and was quickly signed by the Browns.

He was taken in the dual role of coach and player—for $30,000 if he can do both; $15,000 if he fails as a player.

Marty hasn't reached any conclusions about American League pitching. That will come after the season opens.

How does it fell to be back in harness as a shortstop?

"Oh, I'm much happier as a player than as a manager. Less worry, less responsibility—and I like to play. A man should manage only after he's through as a player."

Marion says the new Browns under manager Rogers Hornsby are a hustling bunch, doing a bang-up job.

"But I won't predict how we'll make out until the season gets under way," he adds. "I learned as a manager that you can't tell about players until you've looked them over in league competition."

Louis Finds No Regrets Over Career

By RAY GRODY
(The Milwaukee Sentinel)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 12 (AP)—"I have no regrets. I wouldn't want to try and second guess myself over what I'd do if I had my life to live over again. I'm perfectly satisfied with the way I conducted myself during my boxing career."

So spoke Joe Louis, as he turned back the pages of his 17 years as a professional fighter, during which he won the heavyweight title and successfully defended it 25 times, more than any other champion.

Sitting in his International Boxing Club office at the Chicago Stadium, the Brown Bomber frankly discussed his past, present and future.

Didn't he feel, as he looked back, that somewhere along the line he'd made mistakes—mistakes that if he had to do it over again, he would avoid?

Joe slowly removed his feet from the top of the desk, leaned over and in a straightforward manner explained:

"It's easy for anybody to say he did that wrong and this wrong. There's no one who couldn't find some room for improvement. Even a millionaire would find fault, and say he could have made two million if he had done this and that. Not me, everything I did, I did in good faith."

Asked whether he still believed he had done the right thing in making a comeback after announcing his retirement, Louis answered:

"I was sincere when I said I was retiring. But when you are told that you owe your government a debt, you have a duty to pay it. I was determined to pay it, and the only way I knew how was to fight again. I paid up, and then I quit.

He broke into a smile as he added:

"(Rocky) Marciano hurried things a bit, but I have no regrets. Boxing was always good to me. I made plenty of money and lived well."

Did he feel he spent his money too fast, and possibly unwisely?

"No," he said, "when you're on top, you spend it accordingly. Sure, I could have made different investments, but who knew? I say again, I did everything in good faith."

S-C Places 2nd In 4-Team Meet

The Smith-Cotton Tigers again ran in the shadows of the William Chrisman Bears Friday as they placed second behind the Independence tracksters in a four-team meet held on the victor's field. The final tabulation of points gave William Chrisman 56½, the Tigers 40, Southeast of Kansas City 36½, and Raytown 19.

Sedalia's ace hurdler, Floyd Burton, won both the 120-yard highs and the 180-yard lows in :15.3 and :22 flat, both creditable times.

Other Tiger first-place winners were Chester O'Bannon, who took the quarter-mile in :55.1, and vaulter Skip Schultz, who tied for first with an 11-foot vault.

Bailey of Raytown was the meet's high point man with 13. He took both the broad and high jumps and placed second in the high hurdles.

Harold Hughes, 440-yard dash man, and Richard Stephens, half-miler, both made good showings in their events. Hughes placed third in the 440 and Stephens second in the half mile. Dent pole vaulted 10 feet 10 for a third in that contest.

Others who earned points were Ford, Phelps, Cooper and Rathburn. The Tiger relay teams are showing improvement over past meets.

Browns Inject New Interest Into American League Race

By WILL HARRIDGE,
American League President

CHICAGO, April 12—(AP)—Generally high fan interest as reflected by attendance at exhibition games, new ownership and leadership at St. Louis and a fine crop of new players—these are some of the reasons I feel will produce another good season for the American League in 1952.

There is no question in my mind that under President Bill Veeck and manager Rogers Hornsby the St. Louis Browns will assume a new role in our approaching 62nd season. With virtually a new club, directed by a new manager who has demonstrated his ability, the Browns are certain to attract wide interest and possibly play a big part in determing the final outcome of the pennant race.

League Is Stronger

Another reason I believe our league is better and stronger than it was in 1951 is the fact that winter trades and the fine performance of several rookies during the spring training season has resulted in better balance for the whole circuit. For more than a decade close races have been the rule rather than the exception in the American League. I believe this coming year may see another flag fight which could go down to the final days of the schedule.

Attendance at the spring exhibition games has proved, over the years, a fairly reliable yardstick in estimating season crowds. This spring the trial games in several cities established new park records, while the advance sale of tickets both for the openers and for season boxes has been unusually good in all American League cities. I feel certain we have an excellent chance of reaching, if no surpassing, the 1951 attendance of almost nine million fans.

New Faces Dot Lineups

New faces in the lineups always interest the fan, and 1952 could produce a number of youngsters destined to be standouts.

Newcomers such as Andy Carey and Harry Schaeffer of New York, Hector Rodriquez of Chicago, Jim Fridley of Cleveland, Francisco Campos of Washington and Clint Courtney of St. Louis and Jim Piersall of Boston, to mention only a few, will get close inspections from fans around the circuit.

Next Tuesday's opener should usher in another fine year for major league baseball, one which should hold the interest of fans to closing day.

Cubs, Sox Game Called

CHICAGO, April 12—(AP)—For the second straight day, weather prevented the Chicago Cubs and White Sox from starting their city series as rain and cold wiped out today's scheduled contest at Comiskey Park.

Lights Are On In White House, Trumans 'At Home'

Renovation of Mansion Brings Changes Like Margaret Moving Into Lincoln's Room—Here's How It Appears Today

By Ruth Cowan

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Generally the first comment about the renovated White House is: "How white it is!"

The whitest white paint that could be found was used on the exterior to make this graceful home of the nation's presidents a "White House."

It sparkles in the sunlight and at night gleams through the trees on the grounds.

The President and Mrs. Truman moved back March 27 after living across Pennsylvania Avenue at Blair House for more than three years while the historic 150-year-old structure was being rebuilt and remodeled.

The lights are back on! The Pennsylvania Avenue entrance once again is illuminated by the huge iron lantern-like porch light. Its glow is reassuring for it was one of the first lights to be turned off when bombs struck Pearl Harbor.

Fountains Are Playing

The fountains are playing and gardeners are setting out flowering spring plants. By day and night, spectators — tourists and folks who have lived here for years—peer through the high iron fence. Cars, even taxi-cabs, pass by at a slower pace.

As though in response to the nation's desire to see its symbolic home lived in again, lights within are turned on, heavy draperies left unpulled and shades up, even though there is not much a passer-by can see save a glimpse of color and a sparkle from a crystal chandelier.

The general public will be permitted its first inspection—of the two lower floors — in about a month. The two upper floors will be seen only by state visitors or guests of the presidential family.

The renovation cost about $5,700,000. It was an extensive job, for the structure was found to be in a dangerous condition. It practically had to be rebuilt save for its outer walls.

Remodeled for Comfort

In general it looks as it did before, but in some ways it was remodeled for modern comfort. Bedrooms now have closets instead of wardrobes. Soft, lighter colors were used in decorating the living quarters.

Sections of the roof of the top floor were raised to add bedrooms, for large as the mansion looks it was cramped. Before renovation there were in all 48 rooms, counting the parlors, and 14 baths; now 54 rooms and 16 baths.

The solarium on the top floor has been enlarged and now is one of the most cheerful rooms in the house. It is painted soft green and has rattan furniture. Its large picture window overlooks the Washington Monument grounds. Here the Trumans breakfast.

Catwalk On Roof

The top floor sets back and there is a catwalk, unseen from the street, along which Mr. Truman can take his morning constitutional.

Some of the bedrooms on the top floor have double beds, others have studio couches so the rooms can be used as sitting rooms. The pastel colored tile baths have glass enclosed shower-tubs.

The presidential family's living quarters are at the west end of the second floor. Mr. Truman, Mrs. Truman and Margaret each have a bedroom-sitting room suite. Mrs. Truman selected blue as the predominant color in her bedroom. Her sitting room has shades of amethyst, green and ivory.

Margaret is using as her sitting room a large room across the hall formerly known as "The Lincoln Room," for in it was the emancipator's huge bed. The walls now are dark green trimmed with white. The furniture is upholstered in pinks and greens. Her bedroom, furnished in French Provincial, is predominantly pink. She likes pink.

HST's Room Gray-Green

The walls of the President's bedroom are soft gray-green and so is the rug. The comfortable overstuffed chairs have slip covers of warm light brown. There are shades of brown and green in floral print draperies.

His sitting room — generally known as the "President's Study" —is the oval room just behind the south portico. Outside its windows is the balcony he had built and which caused a fuss in 1948.

This room has been done in tones of soft green. The walls are of a light mint green and the soft wool rug is of spruce green. The handsome draperies are of green satin.

Move Lincoln's Bed

Lincoln's bed has now been moved to a large room at the east end. Some of the Lincoln cabinet chairs, his desk, a marble top table and other items he used are now in this room.

Across the hall is the rose room —so named because of the colors used. This was used by Queen Mother Elizabeth of Britain and lately by Juliana of The Netherlands. It is considered the "best guest room."

A few other major bedrooms open off the wide center hall which runs the full length of the building. Each end of this hall is furnished as a sitting room.

The main stairway to the second floor leads upward from the main hall into which one steps on entering the Pennsylvania door. In the stairway arch have been carved the seals of the 13 original states.

Otherwise the floor plan of the main floor in unchanged. The east room—the ball room—is now in gold and white save for a pair of original Adam sofas, upholstered in blue. These sofas are a recent donation.

Portraits On Walls

The former cranberry silk draperies have been replaced with white and lemon-gold damask, characteristic of the 18th century. On the wall are portraits of George and Martha Washington.

At the other end of the building is the state dining room or west room. Its dark oak panel walls have been painted a soft green. There are gold silk damask draperies and the chairs are upholstered in cut velvet. The solid colored rug is a green harmonizing with the walls.

The blue room—or the diplomatic room where the Trumans and the Franklin D. Roosevelts before them received their guests —has walls recovered in blue and gold satin.

On the ground floor is a modern glass, aluminum and electric kitchen. The mansion's original kitchen, used in the days when huge roasts turned on rods in fireplaces, has been turned into a modern-age room. Elaborate equipment has been built in and here the presidents will make broadcast and television appearances.

Beneath the building now are two basement floors, and located somewhere about is a $868,000 "bomb shelter." Little is said about it.

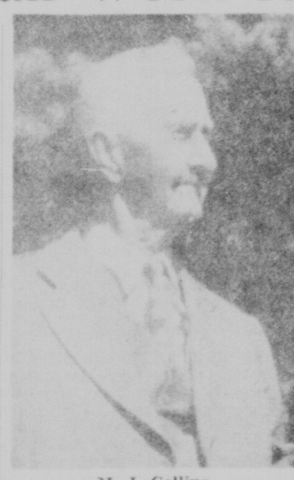

Up on the roof is a very new note—TV antennae.

BACK TO WHITE HOUSE—President Truman, just back from a three-week vacation in Florida, holds up a gold key to the door of the White House as he and Mrs. Truman, left, take up residence in the newly rebuilt structure. (NEA TELEPHOTO)

Recalls 75 Years Ago When His Father Began Work for Railroad

By M. J. Collins
315 West Fifth

M. J. Collins

Being 90 years old and lucky to be healthy, stout and hearty, my ambition is to relate and celebrate the 75th anniversary of my beginning work on the section at Smithton under my father on April 16, 1877. I have never in many years met any man who started to work as early for the Missouri Pacific railroad.

I have early memories as a boy of the old time wood-burning engine that took on wood at all the towns and operated, up to 1869, on a wide gauge track. The passenger trains were stopped at a station by hand brakes and on open platforms very often run by the station. Air brakes and patent couplers were unknown.

I saw the Ives Eating House built where the present depot in Sedalia now stands. It later burned, at the time being called the Garrison House. The railroad company gives the date of the burning of the depot as 1886, and I remember it well. I knew a girl, a waitress, who lived there. I also saw the next one built and recently removed to the present streamlined depot.

I was known to the officials of the road, such as A. A. Talmage, general superintendent, and J. W. King, the very efficient paymaster. He paid me every check I received for seven years and told me goodbye when I quit.

We were paid by pay-car, run over the road on the 17th, and I have had my fingers touching the pen many a time before the wheels came to a full stop. They paid us out on the road where we were at work. We only needed a cross-mark to receive our pay.

The track was repaired in those days by putting in an average of about 500 new ties to the mile and they were white oak, not creosoted as the pine ties are today.

Old Father Time has been very generous and sparing to me. In all those years I have climbed many a hill, crossed over the same hollows and on the railroad driven many a spike. On the farm I walked and plowed many a row of corn, and I thank the Almighty God for all of His blessing to me.

Odds and Ends By News Staff

A 15-year-old boy who is already 6 foot 1 and wears a size 13 shoe recently broke his ankle.

The doctor x-rayed the foot and, thinking he was telling the father of the boy good news, he said: "See how far apart the bones are in his foot—there is plenty of room for his foot to grow."

Poor papa was horrified: "Room to grow?" he exclaimed. "He wears the largest size shoe that can be bought now. What will we do if it grows any more?"

Mother and Dad are mighty proud of their big boy but they would be happy if he would just stop where he is. Another inch and he won't fit the bed either. They believe he has enough "understanding." And he'd really be tall if he didn't have so much turned under for feet.—H.L.

There are some people dogs just naturally like and it doesn't seem to make much difference how friendly or how unfriendly the dog is. Of course, the people themselves have something to do with it, too, because they usually are very fond of dogs.

Such a woman lives in Sedalia and her best friend does not exactly share her love for dogs. She doesn't particularly dislike dogs—she just doesn't like them all — she doesn't feel the urge to make friends with and pet every dog she sees.

One day they went to a farm home and the dog lover started toward the house while the other girl waited in the car. The dog growled and barked while the dog lover advanced slowly toward it. The dog was headed in her direction, fast at first and then more slowly. The woman stopped and the dog stopped — then he started again cautiously as she held out her hand, talking to him. By the time the woman of the house got out there the dog and the woman were shaking hands. The dog owner shook her head in wonderment: "He makes a fine watch dog, doesn't he?" she said.

"I wouldn't have gone near that dog," said the woman sitting in the car, "I would have been so frightened."

That was just one such incident. Usually the dogs did not seem so vicious, but they always made friends and they always followed the dog lover back to the car.

Then came a day when the two women went to a farm house where there were a lot of little pigs running loose. The dog lover got out and went to the farm house while her friend waited and when she returned all the little pigs returned with her while the woman at the farm house tried in vain to call them back.

That was too much for the woman in the car.

"It's bad enough," she told her friend, "to have dogs following you everywhere you go — but when it comes to having pigs following you—that's just too much." —H. L.

England's Forestry Commission is the biggest landowner in that country, with 516,390 acres of land planted with trees.

Previous to horseshoeing, horses' hooves were covered with socks or sandals.

Aunt Molly Harmsworth snorted in disgust when she heard some of the younger women complaining that they couldn't get new Easter dresses because of high prices. She said she remembered when she had to go without a new dress because her late beloved husband's trotter needed a new blanket.

Truman Paradox Combination Of Courage and Corruption

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON — Last week the Queen of Holland told the president that historians would credit two men with doing more than any others to stop the march of Communism —Dean Acheson and Harry S. Truman.

In a sense newspapermen are day-to-day historians—though not always accurate ones. They have to write fast, make snap judgments; but, from piecing together these snap judgments and judging them through the vista of life, history books are written.

Seven years ago today, this columnist was in Pittsburgh on a speaking engagement when called upon to make a snap judgment regarding current history. Franklin D. Roosevelt had died, and I had to go on the air immediately without a prepared script to predict the future of the new president of the United States.

I predicted that he would be another Andrew Johnson; that, like the turbulent days which followed Lincoln, his administration would be featured by strife and dissension; he would almost be impeached, but that his basic policies would be right.

Today, seven years after Mr. Truman took office, I believed both my prediction and the Queen of Holland will be proved right.

Courage and Corruption

The paradox of Mr. Truman's administration is that he has shown great courage and wisdom on his major policies, but has sabotaged his own greatness by terrible public relations, personal spleen, and the appointment of mediocre — sometimes corrupt — men to carry out his policies.

And by so doing, he has helped sidetrack the course charted by the late Franklin Roosevelt, just as Andrew Johnson unwittingly sidetracked the reconstruction program of Abraham Lincoln, thereby setting the south back two decades.

For what Harry Truman doesn't realize is that when he doesn't clean up corruption, he undercuts his greatest goal — international cooperation. Or when he writes a snide letter to Bernard Baruch or to the Washington Post music critic, he undermines his program on civil rights, labor and everything else.

For, as any president loses prestige and popularity, in direct proportion he also loses the ability to push his program through Congress.

Statesmanship in the last analysis is the ability to look ahead and solve a problem before it becomes insolvable.

Herbert Hoover proved himself no statesman when he let unemployed veterans concentrate in Washington until they formed a bonus army of 20,000 and had to be driven out with cavalry and tanks. Franklin Roosevelt, later facing the same problem, never let the veterans concentrate in Washington. He sent them outside the city to Fort Hunt, Va., 100 a day, to be rehabilitated and returned to their homes. He met the problem before it became serious.

Likewise Harry Truman showed great statesmanship when he threw American weight behind Greece and Turkey in 1947 when those two key countries were about to topple into the arms of the Kremlin. He looked ahead.

Again Truman established a mighty milestone against Communism when he had the courage to pioneer the Marshall plan. Undoubtedly it saved western Europe from Moscow's grip.

The same was true of the North Atlantic Pact and a united West European Army. This was what Queen Juliana had in mind when she told the president that he and Dean Acheson would go down in history as doing more than any other two men to stop the march of Communism.

She is right. And the paradox is that the American public, thanks to the fulminations of Senator McCarthy, probably does not appreciate it.

Mistaken Loyalty

By coupling the secretary of state with the president, the queen put her finger, probably without realizing it, on the fundamental key to Harry Truman's successes and failures. As he has picked good men, so he has succeeded. As he has picked poor men, so he has failed.

Dean Acheson, despite the McCarthy critics and some personal idiosyncracies, will go down in history as a great secretary of state.

Acheson once tried to have me jailed for contempt of court, at Felix Frankfurter's request, so I am not personally prejudiced in his favor. I am sure, however, that the above appraisal is correct.

On the other hand, the greatest scandals of the Truman administration have involved income taxes. And at the head of the Treasury Department controlling taxes, sits a nice but complacent mediocrity, John Snyder, who holds office only because he is an old Missouri friend of the president.

The president has supported his secretary of the treasury just as vigorously as he has supported his secretary of state. His loyalty to neither can never be questioned. But sometimes loyalty to the country and loyalty to great policies must be placed before loyalty to friends. And loyalty to an old friend at the head of the Treasury Department has weakened Harry Truman's courageous major policies more than he himself will ever know.

Likewise, loyalty to another friend, Tom Pendergast of Kansas City, has weakened his effectiveness, hurt his prestige, sabotaged his own program. For, when Harry Truman flew to the funeral of Boss Pendergast, the ex-convict, using a government plane to do so, he set a pattern —a pattern for lesser men to follow.

And when he fired the U.S. attorney, Maurice Milligan, who convicted Pendergast, and ousted the attorney general, Francis Biddle, who insisted on retaining Milligan, Truman cut that pattern deeper. Every politician, every official right down the line, saw the precedent and many followed it.

Those two cases delineated the corruption pattern for this administration. And when President Truman cut it, he did not realize that he was setting back some of the great policies of the past decades — international cooperation, civil rights, social welfare.

The tragedy is that he probably does not realize it even to this day.

Looking Backward

FORTY YEARS AGO

Addresses were given by the Rev. Harold Cooper and M. A. Larry at a luncheon of the Sedalia Booster Club held at the YMCA building. R. C. Combs was toastmaster.

Sheriff M. T. Henderson had a force of prisoners at work on the public highway near Georgetown. Charlie Williams and A. Frick were serving as guards.

Fred L. Ludemann, mayor-elect of Sedalia, was honor guest at a luncheon given by Russell Camp, Modern Woodmen of America, 100 guests being at the event.

N. H. Gentry shipped to California three registered Berkshire hogs on which the express charges by the Wells-Fargo Express Company approximated $150.

James A. Houchin, Jefferson City, seeking the nomination by the Democrats for governor, gave an address at the courthouse. He was accorded a fair audience and was introduced by Judge H. B. Shain.

Lee Warren and family moved into the remodeled Albert Cassing property at 518 West Fourth.

Lee Fowler, contracting agent for the MK&T, accepted a position in a like capacity with that road at Ft. Worth, Tex., the change carrying with it an increase in salary.

W. W. Downing, a former Sedalian, representing a Chicago soap company, having headquarters in Kansas City, was a visitor here with friends.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The J. C. Penney Company opened in its new quarters, Third and Ohio, during the silver anniversary of the Penney Company.

Judge Louis Hoffman, 74, of the Pettis County Circuit Court, died Tuesday evening, April 12, at his home, 901 South Missouri, following an illness of six weeks.

Miss Nina Babcock, engaged in newspaper work in Florida, arrived for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Babcock on West Seventh.

Several copies of leading news publications in Africa were received by John Homer Bothwell from Charles E. Yeater, who, with Mrs. Yeater, was visiting that country.

Articles of incorporation of Central Business College and Secretarial School were filed in the county recorder's office.

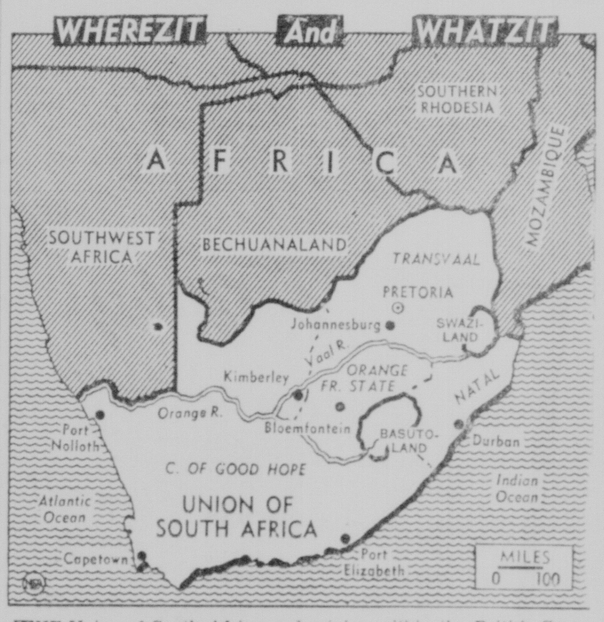

S. A. Duval, a drug clerk at the W. E. Bard Drug Store on South Ohio, accepted a position at Jefferson City with the De Wyl Drug Co.

At a meeting of the newly elected school board James T. Montgomery was made president and George Bertheoux was re-elected treasurer.

H. H. Cecil was appointed as chairman of the cleanup drive to be started in Sedalia on April 17. The slogan was "Clean Up and Stay Clean".

'All to the Good for Me!'

THE Union of South Africa, a dominion within the British Commonwealth of Nations, is one of the world's richest gold and diamond countries with one of the world's worst social problems. It is comprised of four provinces—Cape of Good Hope, Transvaal, Natal and the Orange Free State, and came into existence in 1910 when the United Kingdom passed the South African Act. The capital is Pretoria, but the legislature still meets in Capetown. Transvaal and Natal are rich in cotton and wool. Copper, tin and coal are abundant throughout the country. South Africa's social problem arises from its three main population groups—European white, native African and native Indian. The two million Europeans control the nine million Negroes and the 250,000 Indians and one faction, currently in power, is determined to maintain the status quo. Prime Minister Daniel Malan, an old Boer Afrikaner and advocate of apartheid (racial segregation) has dedicated his life to maintain white supremacy. In 1950 he introduced a bill removing 50,000 Cape Colored (half-castes) from white voting lists and assigned their votes to four white representatives. The reaction to the law was sharp. Violent race riots occurred. The Supreme Court handed Malan and apartheid its first setback by declaring the law null and void. Resentment by the victims of Malan's discriminatory laws mounted. It took expression in the form of organizations, sponsored by the African National Congress and dedicated to action "for defiance of unjust laws" by a select, trained group, to be followed by mass disobedience, reminiscent of Mahatma Gandhi's strategy in India. Thus is the stage set for what may be a long, bitter and possibly bloody battle against Malan's racial regime.

Mo Pac Branch To Lexington Changes Time

The Missouri Pacific Lexington branch has a temporary change in its running time. The leaving time has been changed to 4 p.m. from 6 a.m. The time of its arrival back in Sedalia will vary anywhere from 10 p.m., the official time, to 4 o'clock in the morning —all depending on the amount of freight.

Due to a pipeline going through near Concordia, cars of pipe are being freighted over the Missouri Pacific branch line. Because of the crowded conditions on some of the sidings, it is necessary to split the cargo and run the cars on sidings at Sweet Springs, Concordia and Higginsville, which takes considerable time.

The branch many years ago was a busy line and four trains a day ran back and forth on a slow time schedule. This made connections with the river route at Myrick. The train continues to make the river route connection, and goes to Lexington, from there to Myrick to the "Y" turnaround.

Some years ago, during the horse and buggy days, Mrs. Jim Ricks, Tulsa, Okla., was a visitor in the Luella McClure home at Hughesville and, desiring to make an overnight visit to Kansas City, was driven to Sedalia to catch a fast train from here. She boarded the train and sat back for her trip to Kansas City on what she thought was the faster train. At 7 a.m. the conductor at one stop called "Hughesville". She missed her fast train, but did get to Kansas City over the slower one.

Times have changed considerably since those days, a Hughesville woman explains.

THE STORY: Private Detective George Kendall, retained by the wealthy Albert P. Sutworth to prevent his daughter from eloping with Max Arno, who once wrestled under the name of Chief Big Bear, has gone to Seneca Springs, a small city where Arno operates a gymnasium. George blunders into a women's reducing class at the gymnasium, escapes and then goes to Arno's apartment. There he becomes acquainted with a pretty young woman who has an apartment on the same floor as Arno. George becomes so engrossed in dancing and conversation, that he forgets the lapse of time. Suddenly there is a knock on the door and three policemen enter, saying they had a report that a crime was being committed in the place.

ONE of the policemen picked up the trigonometry book. "Look at this!" he exclaimed. "An arithmetic book. No crime in that. What's your name, bub?" He was looking at George.

"George Kendall," George replied.

"That's the one," said the heaviest of the three policemen.

George's heart sunk. Somehow they'd learned about the incident at the gymnasium.

The tallest officer drew a slip of paper from his pocket. "Kendall. Yeah, that's the one. You're supposed to be dead, Mac, or in some kind of danger."

Suddenly, George Kendall remembered Verna Denton and the 30 minutes. "Officer, that's a mistake. I can explain everything."

"You'd better do your explaining down at the station," the tall one said. "We don't like jokes."

"You don't understand," Kendall started.

"All I understand is that we got a pretty serious report here, so let's get down to the station and get it thrashed out."

"Officer," the girl said suddenly. "I'll vouch for this man. He's been here for over an hour and he's perfectly harmless."

The officer shot a glance at the girl. "Maybe he is harmless, but I got to do what I've got to do. C'mon, Kendall, let's get a move on."

George looked at the three burly policemen and knew it was useless to protest any further. These small town police seldom ran into anything that smelled of murder, and when they did they weren't going to let it slip through their fingers.

Officers took hold of each of George's arms and they escorted him to the door. Suddenly, George jerked loose and whirled around. "Hey," he yelled at the girl, "I don't even know your name."

She put on her glasses. "It's Marilyn," she replied, with a perplexed frown. "Marilyn Sutworth!" She waved at him. "Will you be back?"

"I hope so."

"C'mon, bub," one of the officers said, jerking his arm. "You can finish your arithmetic lessons some other day."

* * *

"SHUT up, will you?" George Kendall said. "One more word off that little red tongue of yours, and I'll cut it up into a thousand pieces."

George was back at the Seneca Springs Hotel and Verna was helping him unpack his suitcase. "But I was only following orders, George. You said—"

"Never mind what I said. Do you realize that if you hadn't come down to the station and explained things that I might have confessed I was a peeping Tom?"

"They were only thinking of your welfare, George. They weren't after you. Anyway," she said, "I thought you looked kind of cute with all those cops."

"Sure, and while I'm being detained, Marilyn Sutworth and Chief Big Bear may be running off to a Justice of the Peace. That's just fine."

"Well it hasn't happened yet, so stop worrying. At least, you had a chance to meet the girl." There was a pause. "Does she look anything like her picture?" she asked.

He thought he detected a note of jealousy. He shrugged his shoulders. "It's a matter of opinion," he lied. The girl didn't look the least bit like her photo.

George crossed the room and picked up the phone. "I want to send a telegram," he said. When connections were made he dictated slowly: "Albert P. Sutworth . . . Fort Benjamin Hotel . . . New York City . . . Situation gloomy . . . Stop . . . Your daughter incomprehensible . . . Stop . . . May have to try desperate move . . . Stop . . . Keep your chins up—better make it chin, operator. Just one chin, forget the others . . . NO. Don't put that in the telegram . . . Keep your chin up . . . Stop . . . Sign it George Kendall. And, operator, send it collect." He hung up.

"What desperate move are you planning, George?" Verna Denton asked.

"Plan No. 2 and I've got to work fast." He lifted the phone again and had the desk ring Max Arno's apartment. Marilyn, apparently still remaining there after George had been dragged away by three policemen, answered.

"It's me," said George. "George Kendall. I'm out of jail."

Marilyn giggled. "I'm so glad, but I knew you weren't a criminal."

"You did?"

"Of course," Marilyn said. "But I felt a little amazed to have three big policemen drag you away from me. What happened?"

"I haven't time to tell you now," George said, "but can you meet me in front of the Seneca Springs Hotel in 15 minutes?"

* * *

"I'D like to," Marilyn's voice grew reluctant, "but Max and I are going for a hayride this evening and that's something I want very much to do."

"A hayride in the middle of April?"

"You don't know my Max," she said with a light laugh. "He's having the hay shipped in from Texas, or someplace. He's down at the freight terminal getting the stuff now."

"I'll call you tomorrow then. All right?"

"I'm not sure where I'll be tomorrow. Better let me call you."

Man's Prestige, Already Low, Sinks More at Easter Season

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—It is no secret that the prestige of the male in America has been on the toboggan for some time.

But modern masculinity sinks to new depths of obscurity during the Easter parade.

What part does a man play today in this annual outdoor fashion show?

He is about as anonymous as a sardine in the sea. Who cares what he wears? Nobody. If he showed up clad only in his birthday suit, who would notice him? Nobody. All eyes are on the ladies, who have turned the Easter parade into a marching demonstration of womanhood triumphant.

This is the hour of feminine power, and every woman knows it. She puts on her prettiest feathers and struts the streets in peacock pride. What is that drab thing that mopes along by her side? Well, it used to be a man.

But a man is no longer a man in the Easter parade. He is a strolling slave to his queen, a dun lackey, a kind of walking watch-fob. If he dressed properly for the spirit of the occasion, he would wear a ring through his nose.

It wasn't that way of yore. Your cavalier of yesteryear was a match for mama in every way during the Easter parade. If she wore silk, he matched her in satin. He wore a bunch of lace at his throat and a bright sword dangled from his side.

But since then men, to the growing dismay of custom tailors, have become steadily less important in the world of Easter fashions.

Yes, papa is a complete nonentity at Eastertide. The family budget can only afford finery for one — and that one is mama. She has won the victory of equal rights.

How long is this going to go on? In some male breasts the seed of rebellion has already been sown.

"I am tired of being an overlooked scarecrow," papa will tell mama. "You go walk by yourself. I'm going to pull down the window shades, take off my shoes and stay home and look at television."

If men just had the courage to do that once, women would figure out a way to re-equip the man of the house with a few fine feathers and let him share the parade spotlight again. For if there is anything a woman hates, it is to get all dressed up for Easter — and have to go out alone.

A BOY AT CALVARY

By Jay Heavilin and Walt Scott

When three hours had passed, the dark earth shook. Now, thought Sakron, if Jesus is the Messiah He will escape. Instead, a last trembling sigh escaped Jesus as He cried, "Father, unto Thy hands I commend My spirit."

Inexplicable loneliness overwhelmed Sakron. Grief glistening in his eyes, he trudged back to Macada. Though his mother greeted him with kisses, there remained within him an aching emptiness.

Then, on the third day, word winged across the land — Jesus had risen. When Sakron heard it in Macada, his loneliness was suddenly lifted, and somehow he knew he would not feel it again. It was a day of exultation.

Stan Kenton Wants Schools To Teach Jazz

Stan Kenton, one of America's foremost authorities on modern music, feels that the music departments of the nation's universities are making a grave mistake in not offering a course in creative music (generally referred to as "Jazz").

Currently on a nation-wide dance tour with his 20-piece orchestra, Kenton will present his "Artistry in Rhythm" in Sedalia at Convention Hall, Liberty Park, on Wednesday evening, April 23. This is the second annual spring dance sponsored by the Sedalia Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Speaking on his favorite subject of modern music, Kenton said, "The attitude of the heads of so many of our college and university music departments completely amazes me. I am greatly concerned by these instructors' shortsightedness and apparent disregard of their students' desire to study this type of music."

The bandleader added that the country's educational institutions (with few exceptions) are treating jazz with disdain—dismissing its value as art form. This disdain, this disregard, is due to a "lagging behind" on their part, he says. "These instructors still think of jazz as a 'honky-tonk' music, when in reality jazz is a highly skilled, highly technical form of music. It's the music of today and just as important, if not more so, than the music of yesterday.

"Jazz is the sole art-form that can be referred to as truly American, and yet our music instructors treat it with disrespect". Kenton concluded. "It's a pathetic situation and something should be done about it immediately."

Capra Denies He's Retiring

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Frank Capra, one of Hollywood's most famous directors, denies printed reports that he is retiring from the screen.

The director, who is noted for such hits as "It Happened One Night" and "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," has been reported as having put Hollywood behind him for the easy life at his ranch at Fallbrook, Calif. I called him for comment.

"No, I'm not retiring," he answered. "I finished up my deal at Paramount and I'm going to take it easy for about a year. But I'm not giving up pictures. As a matter of fact, I'm working on some scripts right now."

Capra has made four pictures since returning from the Army. None of them has matched the brilliance of his pre-war films. . . .

This week's award for honesty in advertising goes to the Los Angeles theaters which showed a Ma and Pa Kettle film and a Judy Canova effort. The ads said frankly: "America loves its corn." If such honesty continues, you might see ad lines like this:

"Quo Vadis"—"More gore than ever before."

"Detective Story"—"Kirk Douglas blows his top again."

"A Streetcar Named Desire"—"A screwball and a slob meet in the French Quarter". . . .

Howard Hughes apparently is shutting down RKO and will rest on his backlog for a spell. Then maybe he'll let loose with some almost forgotten projects. Like "Jet Pilot," with John Wayne and Janet Leigh. It was filming in 1949 and almost continually since.

And then there was "Montana Belle," a Jane Russell Western made over three years ago. I guess Hughes likes to age his Westerns—for instance, "The Outlaw". . . .

Stars are getting into television in more ways than one. Loretta Young and Irene Dunne have applied for TV stations in Las Vegas, Nev., and Phoenix and Ronald Colman heads a group planning a station for Santa Barbara, Calif.

No Such Thing As Soviet Jazz

MOSCOW (AP)—There's a lively discussion going on in the Soviet Union about jazz and the conclusion is—there can be no such thing as Soviet jazz.

Most of the opinions are being expressed in the newspaper "Soviet Art," which admits it has received letters from all parts of the country on the jazz question.

"Side by side with a sharp condemnation of American jazz music," said the paper, "certain readers touch upon the question of 'Soviet jazz.'"

These people ask: "Why cannot Soviet jazz exist?" "How does a variety orchestra differ from a jazz orchestra?" "Are not many jazz instruments included in the variety orchestras conducted by Utesov, Knushevitsky, Aivazyan?" (Those three lead what are perhaps the most popular light music bands.)

Certain other readers have suggested that if the "roaring" and "croaking" of jazz has no place in the Soviet way of life, then maybe there's room for the tango and the slow fox trot.

"But what," asked the paper, "is there in common between the whining, tearful intonations of the tango, without kith or kin, or the exaggeratedly erotic rhythms of the slow fox trot and healthy, Soviet lyricism and the bright optimistic temperament of Soviet people?"

Soviet Art said a small group of composers, who are working on the creation of genuinely artistic light music, is not succeeding in satisfying the enormous requirements of the numerous variety collectives which look after the needs of the parks of culture and rest.

"This has made it possible," said the paper, "for a large number of hack composers, who put out a mass of dull, characterless music, which often reproduces cheap, banal cliches borrowed from Western dance forms, to make a living" out of light music.

The motion picture screen again delves into the unusual in the presentation of a 32-minute featurette, "THE GUEST," a story of a humble man who thought God had forsaken him only to find Him always by his side. This featurette is part of the special Easter program starting today at the 50-HIWAY DRIVE IN THEATRE, for a three-day engagement. Abbott & Costello star in the feature picture, "COMIN' ROUND THE MOUNTAIN." An Easter-Egg hunt for the kiddies tonight at 6:45 p.m. is another highlight of the Drive-In Easter Show.

Bob Stanley Will Tour With Central College's Band

Bob Stanley of Sedalia is among the group of 42 musicians who will be touring central and northwestern Missouri on the 27th annual spring tour of the Central College concert band. The band is under the direction of Prof. Keith K. Anderson.

Playing three concerts each day, and performing for high school assemblies during the day and community concerts in the evening, this band will bring the finest in modern, popular and classical music to different sections of Missouri each year.

The tour will begin April 20 and will be concluded on April 27.

Bob is a member of the percussion section, playing the snare drum in the group.

Rod Cameron Tells of India As Film Land

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Cowpoke Rod Cameron is back from India, minus 20 pounds from his lean frame and filled with tales of movie making in that nation.

Cameron dropped the poundage because of his diet, which largely consisted of canned tuna and cheese. No curry fan is Rod. But despite the limited cuisine, he was fascinated with India and particularly, Indian movie making.

"Did you know that India has the second biggest film industry in the world, second only to ours?" he asked over a plate of corned beef hash. (He passed up the tuna casserole.)

I admitted my ignorance.

"Well, it's true," he continued. "But unlike our industry, which is centered in Hollywood, theirs is spread out all over the country. And their methods are a great deal different from ours.

"For instance, time means nothing to them. They might take a year or a year and a half to make a picture. Language has a lot to do with this. There are 15 different languages and 300 dialects in India. The scenes are shot over and over again in all the principal languages. But aside from the language difficulty, they are in no hurry anyway.

"There are far fewer stars than we have in Hollywood, and they are highly paid and much in demand. A star might be making several pictures at once and can earn as much as 125,000 rupees ($25,000) a year. That's a tremendous salary, when you consider that the average Indian earns one rupee a day.

"That's what the movie extras make in India. For their rupee a day, they will do anything, whether it's rioting in a crowd scene or falling off a building. They consider themselves lucky, because the producers keep them on a steady salary, instead of laying them off between pictures."

Cameron remarked that the Indian films run around three hours or more and are generally tearjerkers. The natives also enjoy American pictures, particularly the musicals and westerns. Rod found his own horse operas playing there and was surprised to be recognized even in remote villages.

The actor journeyed to India with Marie Windsor and Cesar Romero to make "The Jungle." While there, they were pressed into duty at the film festivals which were being held all over the country.

Capsule Review:— "Anything Can Happen" would have been a thoroughly enjoyable film if it did not ramble so far afield. As it stands, it has a great deal of charm and human quality. The story, a wandering one, concerns a group of immigrants and their reactions to life in the United States. There are some wonderful characters and some hilarious situations; I wish the makers had spent as much care in editing the plot. Jose Ferrer is good in a remarkably restrained role, and Kim Hunter supplies the love interest.

MA AND PA KETTLE AT THE FAIR!—The family that fun made famous . . . The Kettle brood, is back in all-new mirth with a picture theme that should be close to the hearts of all Sedalians, "Ma and Pa Kettle At The Fair." Percy Kilbride and Marjorie Main, of course, are the stars in the title roles in the current Easter attraction at the Fox theatre.

Bobo Just Dumb Dog His Master Decides

BALTIMORE (AP) — Three parts great Dane and one part St. Bernard, Bozo, a romantic watch dog, was demoted to "all bum" today by his disillusioned owner, Edmund J. Rosendale.

For a year and a half Bozo stood guard over the safe of the laundry Rosendale operates here. Nobody ever tried to get near the place while the vicious looking animal kept his vigil.

But early yesterday safe crackers entered the building with an acetylene torch and removed $3,700 from the safe.

Where was Bozo when all this happened? Out romancing, complained Rosendale, in his first night out in a year and a half.

When the first employe came to work in the morning, Bozo was waiting to be let inside. When he saw the demolished safe he went into a frenzy of barking that took his handlers a full hour to still, according to the out - of - pocket owner.

Suit Prices For Fall May Fall Greatly

NEW YORK (AP)—The price of your next fall's suit will be easier on the budget than last fall. It could be within easy calling distance of pre-Korean prices.

Some men's suit makers are even talking of the return of the "good $40 retail suit."

The price of worsted is coming down to about what it was before the Korean War started—most of the important mills have now cut back prices to that level. (The $40 suit would be from a mixture worsted first priced at $3.80 a yard, cut in January to $3.72½, and this summer to be delivered at $3.40.)

And the garment workers union agrees not to ask for higher wages—at least not until Sept. 15. The effect of the last wage hike (12½ cents an hour, in November, 1950) will still be felt, of course. Labor and overhead are held accountable for around 65 per cent of a suit's wholesale cost.

The reasons for this bright price prospect: 1. The sharp drop in the price of raw wool in Australia and South Africa. 2. The sharp drop in sales and the high inventories in the men's clothing business, which makes "promotion sales and promotion prices" the order of the day if the wool and suit making industries are to be revived.

American woolen, giant of the industry, this week confirmed the cut in worsted prices for fall previously made by several other mills, cuts ranging from 22½ to 40 cents a yard. It was the second cut since the fall line first opened.

The wool clothing industry is beset with troubles: the wide swings in the price of raw wool, the growing competition of synthetic fibers, the price resistance of customers, the mushrooming tendency of men to wear more casual clothes and hold the buying of suits to a minimum.

In the United States total consumption of wool dropped by nearly one-fourth last year, the International Wool Study Group reports.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the Department of Agriculture says that last year per capita consumption of all fibers dropped to 44.04 pounds from 44.8 in 1950, but wool's drop was 25 per cent — from 4.16 pounds in 1950 to 3.09 in 1951. And wool accounted for only seven per cent of total use of fibers, lower even than in the depression year of 1934. Men's suits production of whatever fiber, dropped 18 per cent last year.

Wool men are fighting stoutly, however, against wool's losing by default. F. Eugene Ackerman, president of the Wool Bureau, trade organization, says that in the United States wool consumption postwar has been 73 per cent above prewar. He predicts increasing use of wool, saying it is an accepted fiber and needs no proof of its virtues.

In wool growing centers, however, optimism isn't running so high. In the Western United States the new clip is starting and growers report no rush as yet of buyers.

In Australia, wool prices continue weak, although not falling as fast as a few months ago.

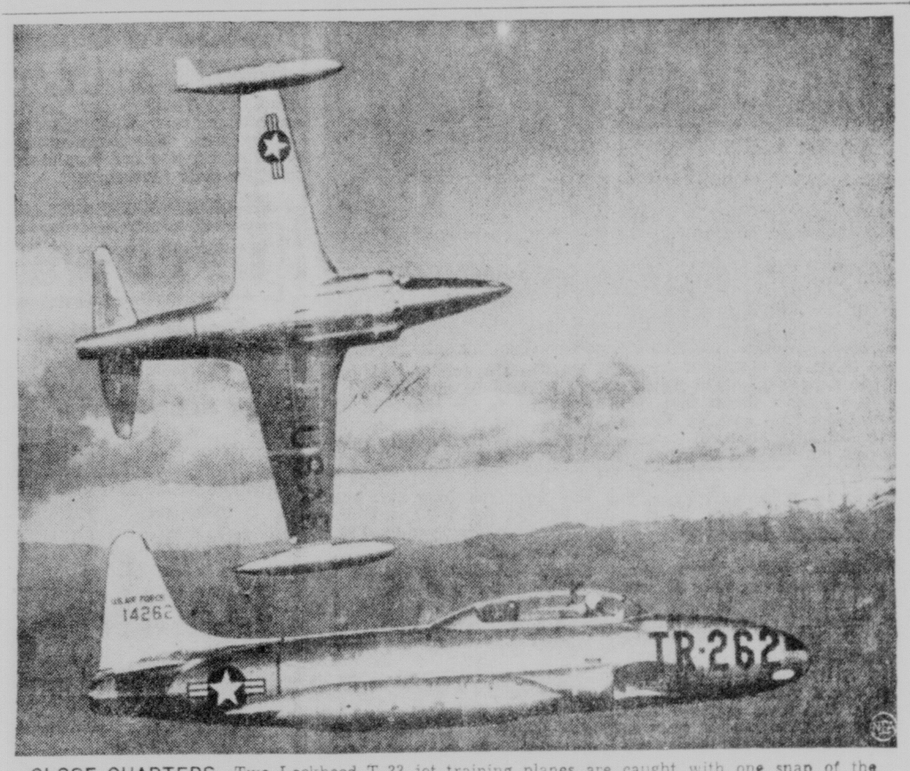

Quizmaster Unsuspecting Cupid

NEW YORK (AP)—Bert Parks and his SBS show, "Break the Bank", have played a starring role in the lives of at least one young couple.

Six years ago Alan Kluger met the girl he married 11 moths ago when quizmaster Parks suggested that members of the studio audience introduce themselves to the one sitting alongside.

Recently Alan and Florence Kluger appeared on the Parks show again. They broke the bank for $2,050. The money went into the bank to "cushion" the arrival of the couple's baby this summer.

Spree Repays Good Turn

KOTA BAHRU, Malaya (AP) — Grateful Royal Air Force officers recently treated a pair of Malaya jungle men to a short spree in comparatively civilized Kota Bahru.

The jungle dwellers, who had helped two crashed R. A. F. officers find their way to a village, saw the sea for the first time, rode in buses and attended an amusement park. To top off their visit, the Air Force bought them $130 worth of shirts, shorts, combs, shoes, needles, thread, belts, tobacco, fishing nets and mirrors.

Germans Won't Make GIs Leave Families Home

BONN, Germany (AP)—The West German government refused today to help the U. S. Army come between its solders below-sergeant rating and their wives.

The Germans turned down an Army request no more tourist visas be given to dependents of Army personnel below the rank of sergeant.

U. S. Army regulations do not authorize Army transportation and billets for families of these soldiers. The Army says thousands are evading the regulation by coming over as tourists, crowding Germany's short housing facilities and creating other problems.

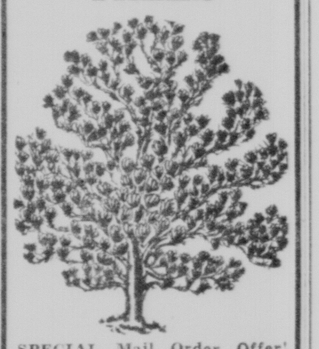

The Army asked the German government to stop the visas or not to extend those now in force when they expire after 90 days.

The Germans took the stand that this was entirely an American problem. German officials said they welcomed tourists as a source of foreign exchange and that soldiers' families would get the same courtesies as any other tourist.

Now the Army must take the problem directly to the soldiers. All who have their families here as tourists have been ordered to report their arrival and register their addresses in Germany.

Unofficial estimates say possibly 10,000 families are here as tourists.

Atomic Energy Billion Dollar Plant In Ohio

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission announced today it is planning construction of a new, billion dollar plant. It said its search for a suitable site is now concentrated in the Ohio River Valley.

This was the first official statement from the commission on the proposed plant, reports of which have been circulating in Kentucky, Ohio and West Virginia.

AEC General Manager M. W. Boyer said in a statement the commission is surveying prospective locations for a site of 5,000 or 6,000 acres for a new gaseous diffusion plant "which is included in the AEC expansion program now being drafted for submission to Congress." It would employ 4,000 to 5,000 operating workers.

Boyer stressed that the commission has not yet decided on a site.

He said studies are being pinpointed in the Ohio River Valley primarily because of the "availability of potential power at reasonable cost in quantities needed for gaseous diffusion plant and the construction and operation of a availability of water."

Science Shows How Chicken Can Equal Two

By OVID A. MARTIN
Associated Press Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the past five years science has shown the chicken farmer how to make one pound of broiler feed do the work of nearly two.

It has done this by adding vitamins, mineral elements and antibiotics to the poultry ration.

Recent studies by the Agriculture Department shows that the best chicken flocks now require only 2.7 pounds of feed to produce one pound of chicken. Five years ago it took nearly twice that much.

The department says that in these days of high prices for grain and other feed products savings in feed make it possible for poultrymen to supply Americans with a record quantity of chicken meat at reasonable prices.

Feed represents more than 60 per cent of the cost of producing broilers. Each decrease of one pound in the feed required to produce a pound of broiler saves almost 5 cents a pound in the cost of the broiler.

On a three-pound broiler, the saving would amount to 15 cents. The profit margin in broiler raising is so close that this could often mean the difference between profit and loss.

The efficient broiler producer no longer prepares his own chicken feed. He buys it from concerns which specialize in preparing special feeds, called mashes. Most of these concerns maintain laboratories where they carry on extensive experiments in search of mixtures that will make chickens grow more quickly and cheaply.

Officials say that if poultrymen used the feeds and feeding practices of 10 years ago current grain prices would require that they get at least 50 per cent more for their chickens than now paid them.

New Copter Can Take 14 Men or 12 Stretchers

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A new helicopter built for the Air Force to carry 14 troops or 12 litter cases and a medical attendant made its first flight yesterday at the Philadelphia Airport plant of the Piasecki Corp.

The tandem twin-rotored craft—designated the YH-21—has a two-man crew and was designed in particular for arctic rescue operations.

Women More Honest So Lady Drummers Make Most Sales

By HAL BOYLE

CINCINNATI (AP) — "Women are more honest than men, and they can sell things better than men," says Phil Meyers.

The discovery of this simple merchandising principle has made him a millionaire and "king of the lady drummers."

He bosses an army of more than 50,000 women salesmen — mostly housewives — who sell two million dresses a year for his Fashion Frocks, Inc., a concern that grosses about 18 million annually.

Meyers, now 52, is a tall, lean, friendly former football player for the University of Cincinnati. After working in his father's small dress manufacturing firm, he decided to start one of his own in a gamble on a pet theory of merchandising he had developed.

"I had the idea that since all women are interested in style the best way to sell one housewife was through another housewife," he said.

So he launched in 1925 — amid considerable laughter in the trade — what has now become the largest direct-selling dress making company in the world. Today Meyers figures he employs more sales people than any American firm other than General Motors and the Woolworth Chain. And they are all women.

"We've had some men salesmen in the past," he acknowledged wryly. "But they weren't satisfactory. A woman will outsell them every time — at least in the field of style."

His formula is this: He advertises for women who want to earn money to help themselves or their families. He sends them a kit book illustrated with pictures and fabric samples of 300 different dresses ranging from $2.98 to $15.98. The dress patterns are kept in current styles — he has his own staff of designers — but he avoids fads and frills.

His determined ladies do the rest. They go out and get the orders, collect a down payment or the entire price of the dress.

Who are these women? Some are wives of ministers. Some are school teachers. Some are employes of consulates abroad. Some are mothers trying to send a kid through school. Many are widows. They earn up to $60 a week or more.

"Their wishbone is sometimes bigger than their backbone," said Meyers. "About 85 per cent of our business is turned in by about 15 per cent of our saleswomen. Naturally there is quite a turnover. Many take up the work only to achieve a single purpose, such as making enough money to buy new furniture for their homes, and then drop out. Others have stayed with us as long as 20 years. And they are usually the best."

Most are married and under 35. But many are over 60. One saleslady over 70 sent in an average of 70 orders a month last year. Meyers likes to tell about a brush salesman who called on one of his representatives.

"She didn't buy a brush but he ended up buying two dresses from her for his wife," he said.

Some of his ladies go door-to-door on foot. Some carry their kit books in baby buggies. One travels about on horseback. Another cruises Montana aboard a motorcycle.

Baby Takes Late Stroll

CALGARY, Alta. (AP) — Police spotted a 2-year-old girl on the streest at 2 a. m. They located the infant's home nearby, where they found the baby-sitter fast asleep. The baby-sitter was reprimanded; the child went back to bed.

Passes 100 Mark

HONESDALE, Pa. (AP) — William F. Pearce, a native of Prompton, Pa., four miles west of here, celebrated his 100th birthday today. He said he was looking forward to next fall when he will cast his 20th presidential ballot.

Auto Industry Controls Ease

By DAVID J. WILKIE
AP Automotive Editor

DETROIT (AP)—Controls on the auto industry's civilian operations are easing up and further relaxation is expected by many auto makers.

But, say the experts, even if all restrictive regulations are removed, there is no danger the car industry will reach an overproduction stage this year.

This view comes from many of the industry's leading sales executives. They insist the industry's merchandising division could sell five million news passenger cars this year.

They pay little heed to arguments that some industries already have produced more goods than easily can be sold and that bargain sales are becoming commonplace for some products of everyday use.

Automobiles, these executives say, are in an entirely different classification. While they hold to the argument that the motorcar primarily is a necessity. It is a thing people buy before they buy many other items of equipment for their homes.

The industry currently is in the midst of a rising demand for new cars. The increase should continue for most of the next four months. Production also is moving upward.

But, leading sales executives say, the industry needs considerably more production than is indicated for the current quarter of the year, if a car shortage is to be avoided.

Margaret Concentrates On Career, Not Getting Wed; Can Change Mind

DENVER (AP)—Margaret Truman, here for a concert tonight, told reporters she currently is concentrating on a career, not romance, but said, "I reserve the right to change my mind."

When asked about engagement rumors, Miss Truman commented: "The last rumor was originated by a man in San Francisco whom I don't even know. I do know the person he said I was to marry, though. That's something."

In reply to a question as to what effect her father's presidential announcement would have on her career, Miss Truman said, "I don't see how it could do anything but help."

Senate Red Probers To Study Union Men

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate subcommittee study Communist infiltration plans to hold hearings April 17-18 in Cleveland into United Workers Union operations in that area.

Richard Arens, staff director for the subcommittee, said about six witnesses had been subpoenaed. Sen. Watkins (R-Utah), who will conduct the sessions, said the hearings probably would be open to the public.

The union was expelled from the CIO on charges of being Communist-dominated.

Pinochle Helps Polio Fight

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP)— Joe Lerner, clothing firm president, parleys pinochle profits to fight polio.

To the March of Dimes in '51, he gave $57 in winnings from weekly pinochle sessions. Winnings for the '52 polio fund totaled $60. He usually wins, he explains, but his losses come out of his own pocket.

Library 500 Years Old

CESENA, Italy (AP)—The Malatestian library, one of the oldest in the world, will celebrate its fifth centenary this spring.

The library was founded in 1452 by Prince Domenico Malatesta, and was kept by the Franciscan Brothers until 1866 when the Italian state took over the property.

The books have been kept with almost religious care for the past five centuries.

The Wright brothers first became interested in aviation through a toy helicopter.

Tried to Take Own Life Because 'Voice' Rejected His Stript

NEW YORK (AP) — A one-time prisoner of Yugoslav Titoists was in critical condition today after trying to kill himself, police said, because the Easter Sunday script he wrote for the voice of America was rejected.

The writer, Anthony Osovnik, 38, is employed by the Voice, the State Department's overseas radio information agency.

Police said he slashed his wrists and opened two gas jets in the home where he lived alone. Officers said he left a note telling of his dismay at the rejection of the Easter Sunday script.

It was to have been a description in the Slovene language of Easter as religiously observed in America, a Voice official said, but it turned out to be a denunciation of Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito.

Osovnik was born in the United States but was taken as a child to Yugoslavia by his parents. He was jailed by Titoists in Yugoslavia in 1946 and has been violently anti-Tito since, a Voice official said. He came here after his release from jail. He is single.

Zonig Rules Beaten in Walk

OKLAHOMA CITY, (AP)— "Is this a 15-cent zone?" inquired the passenger before boarding the bus.

No, explained the driver. It would cost him 20 cents. The cheaper zone started one block farther.

"Well, if you have time," the old gentleman suggested, "let me walk down there—then pick me up." The driver complied.

HERE'S THE Know-How FOR YOUR HAYING JOB

THE MASSEY-HARRIS FORAGE CLIPPER
IT CUTS . . . IT CHOPS . . . IT LOADS . . . HAY OR ENSILAGE

● With forage crops playing a larger part in our modern farming practices, a new and faster method of harvesting hay and ensilage became necessary. To meet this problem, Massey-Harris engineers designed and field-proved the Forage Clipper. An all-purpose forage harvester, the Forage Clipper handles any hay or ensilage crop—cuts, chops and loads in one time-saving, labor-saving field operation. With the rack hitched behind and the elevator pivoted for rear delivery, one man handles the job alone. If you prefer, you can lift the cutting cylinder out of the way and mow and load your crop unchopped.

PICK-UP ATTACHMENT: Equipped with pick-up attachment, the Forage Clipper is right at home handling windrowed hay for chopping, or direct delivery to the rack as desired. Where disposing of straw presents a problem, the Forage Clipper scores again. If you save your straw for bedding, simply load the straw unchopped to the rack; or if you want to plow your straw under, the Forage Clipper will pick it up, chop and spread it over the ground. A mower, a chopper, a loader—that's the Massey-Harris Forage Clipper . . . a forage machine designed to do the job faster and more economically.

CORN ATTACHMENT: Here's the modern way to harvest your ensilage crops. With a corn attachment installed, the Forage Clipper steps in to harvest your corn in a way you'll appreciate. The snouts ride close to the ground cutting the stalks at the base . . . fields are left clean, ready for plowing. Ears, leaves and stalks are chopped and loaded to the rack or truck in lengths from ¾" to 1½" depending upon the cylinder speed. The entire harvest requires but one field operation. Be sure to see us for the complete story of the Forage Clipper next time you're in town. Ask for your copy of the Forage Clipper folder.

Name Brings Relief

RELIEF, O. (AP) —It was a relief when this town was named back in 1884. That's when the Baltimore and Ohio built a railroad through this community. This meant that citizens would get their mail by train instead of by boats on the Ohio River. This, in turn, meant a post office.

The Post Office Department asked the residents to pick a name. First they selected Glennville but Washington said someone had beat them to it. Next they picked Glendale but that was taken, too.

In desperation, they called a mass meeting. A farmer stood up and said it certainly would be a relief to get the matter settled. And it certainly would be a relief to do away with the boat trip.

That's when Relief, O., got its name.

Chinese Repatriation Planned

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP) —The Federation of Malaya government is proposing to repatriate Chinese who wish to return to China with their families. The government has asked the legislative council to appropriate $133,000 to give the scheme a three months' trial.

Purpose of the voluntary repatriation scheme is to get rid of Chinese who feel they have closer ties to China than to Malaya. It would apply primarily to those Chinese squatters who are dissatisfied with the government's program to put them in resettlement areas in order to curb aid to Communist terrorists.
